Sand, Empty Shoes, Scorpions

THE desert is not the simple sand waste it once was. Nearly everywhere there are the remnants of battle. Battered tanks, wrecked trucks, tractors, artillery, broken rifles, belts of machine-gun catridges, slim, graceful anti-tank shells, chianti bottles, tires, wheels and water canteens are scattered over the sands.

At one point an entire battery of Italian 105's stood lined up, barrels horizontally pointed toward the road. Some of them had a wheel or breech shattered. Ten yards behind stood five rusting tractors once used to haul them.

Thousands of Italian pith helmets whitened by the sun blob the country. Occasionally there's a coat, half-buried in the sand, or a blanket, and an astonishing number of shoes, not in pairs, but solitary, curling shoes, filled with sand and perhaps a scorpion or two. Thousands of shoes.

As I passed through this forlorn country, shivers darted up and down my spine. There were too many ghosts scattered about. For three years I had covered the news from Rome. I had watched those battered tanks once parading for Hitler in Rome in 1938. I had sipped chianti with some of the men who wore those pith helmets and sand-filled shoes.

War News Summary

MONDAY, DECEMBER 14

North Africa—The withdrawal of the Germans from the natural defence bottleneck of El Agheila without attempting resistance indicates that they have abandoned hope of holding Libya. If Rommel could not hold at El Agheila, there is little reason to suppose he could do so at Misurata, which is 283 miles to the west and about 100 miles east of Tripoli. Misurata is not as defensible as El Agheila. If he falls back to Tripoli, Rommel would be in little better position. Military expediency would dictate a retreat into Tunisia, abandoning all Libya to the victorious Allies.

The Allies have a supply line of thousands of miles from England and the United States. This explains the slow progress of the campaign in Tunisia, which was moved ahead of schedule by the quick capitulation of the French.

Rommel is in a position to fight a delaying action which is likely to postpone the ultimate decision for many weeks. In the meantime Hitler may be able to think up some move to avoid total defeat in Africa, to get in enough reinforcements to hold out for a considerable period.

Russia: With winter tightening its grip on the Russian battle-front, the chances are increasing for the Red Army to deal heavy new blows to the Germans before they can escape from the narrow corridor they still hold across the Don-Volga steppes to Stalingrad.

The Russians have massed their artillery in newly-won positions along that corridor and are battering the Germans heavily.

Russian gains continued steady, slow; and despite the massing of large forces the Germans still were unable to get a sustained counter-attack under way, or to restore lost positions.

Pacific Theatre: Allied air forces carried the burden of the offensive against trapped Japanese forces at Buna in New Guinea today. Heavy tropical rains practically stopped ground fighting.

A mixed force of Australians and Americans of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command made slight advances in the lower reaches of the trail from Soputa to Sanananda.

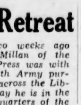

Million Japanese Are Concentrated In Manchuria Area

CHUNGKING, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A Chinese government review of conditions in Manchuria said today about 1,000,000 Japanese troops now are concentrated in that region and Japanese military preparations there have been increased considerably in the last year.

(The estimate of 1,000,000 Japanese troops in Manchuria has not been confirmed by other authorities and is about double earlier estimates.)

When they were pre-war warriors I had watched their faces while Mussolini called them eight million bayonets. I had stood under the balcony at Piazza Venezia on June 10, 1940, at 6.00 o'clock in the evening with my wife and heard Il Duce send those men, our friends, off to their fate.

I probably hopes to elude the British pursuit until he reaches Misurata, 285 miles west of El Agheila and about 100 miles from Tripoli. His next move then likely would be another retreat in a bid to reach Tripoli, the great Axis supply port.

McMillan

He may even have in mind the possibility of escape over the Tripolitanian frontier into Tunisia, to add his strength to the Axis forces there.

MANY MINES LAID

Front-line dispatches speak of extensive mine laying by Axis sappers along the route of the enemy withdrawal. The Germans saved themselves from being overtaken and completely smashed in their retreat from El Alamein at the beginning of November by skillful use of mines which their sappers strew with lightning speed along the Tripolitania Highway and the

Veterans Require Your Aid

At present there are more soldier patients in the Military Ward of the University hospital than there have been for many years. Therefore if these men are to enjoy themselves at Christmas—to the extent their wounds and other war disabilities will permit—more and bigger donations to The Not Forgotten Fund than ever before will be required.

Each year at this season, The Bulletin opens its columns to receive donations to The Not Forgotten Fund, which has as its sole object the provision of a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year for the soldier patients in the Military Ward of the University hospital. These men have been "over there," and have played their splendid part in actual combat with the enemy. Whether they are given a measure of pleasure and contentment at Christmas depends on you.

Send in your donation now. Call up your friends and your clubs and induce them to send in donations as well. No donation is too large; none too small and all will be acknowledged in these columns.

Reds Smash Nazi Attempt To Crack Soviet Pincers

By M. S. HANDLER

MOSCOW, Dec. 14.—(BUP)—Russian troops have smashed a German attempt to crack the southern arm of the Soviet pincers encircling Axis forces in the Stalingrad area, and have penetrated the second enemy line of defence in the city's southern outskirts, front dispatches said today.

Battle line reports said 2,000 more Axis troops had been killed at Stalingrad, while on the central front west of Rzhev, upwards of 1,500 more enemy troops had been killed in the last 24 hours.

German casualties, already estimated by the army newspaper Red Star at more than 8,000,000 killed, wounded or captured since the start of the Russian war, were mounting rapidly on all active fronts, it was said.

BATTERING ENEMY

Soviet communiques reported that the Russians had surged through the first line of German trenches and now were fighting in the second line in the southern outskirts of Stalingrad. Shock troops battered into the German positions, capturing 150 prisoners and destroying three field guns and four machine guns.

Rommel Hopes To Defer End With Retreat

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(BUP)—By abandoning his El Agheila position, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel has shown he realizes he is too weak to accept the British challenge. Rather than suffer a final, crushing defeat now he has chosen to defer the end by a lightning dash westward.

Extensions to Civic Airport To Be Debated

As the result of a week-end conference held between Edmonton Chamber of Commerce officials and city officials, plans for the extension and expansion of city airport facilities will be discussed shortly at a conference of Dominion aviation officials and local groups, an official of the chamber stated Monday.

Headed by C. E. Garnett, chairman of the aviation and northern projects committee of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, a delegation met Mayor Fry and the city commissioners at the week-end and discussed the chamber's proposed plan of extension of facilities.

EXTEND RUNWAYS

The delegation pointed out that the need for provision of runways up to at least 7,500 feet in length before all types of planes could be handled adequately, was imperative.

Mayor Fry informed the delegation that certain lands south of Kingsway had already been reserved for such runway extensions and that as a result of the representation made by the chamber representatives, other lands in the vicinity would be reserved.

The discussions also took into account the effect on city development by extending runways to unusual lengths across traffic lanes and had regard for other factors in civic planning, such as the provision of utilities to areas lying beyond the proposed extensions.

CONFERENCE SOON

It is expected that a conference with Dominion aviation authorities from the department of transport will be called in the near future.

Representatives of the engineers' office, the airport administrative staff as well as well-known aviation specialists will also be present at this conference.

Man Slugged by Men in Uniform Robbed of Cash

Dan Carrigan, of 10215 121 street, well-known city service station operator, was slugged and robbed of $78 by two men in Canadian army uniforms early Saturday morning, city police reported Monday. Mr. Carrigan was left in a semi-conscious condition and his attackers fled in his car. It was recovered at 96 street and 109A avenue at 7 p.m. Saturday.

According to the police report, Mr. Carrigan picked up two men in soldiers' uniforms who thumbed the ride at 102 street and 104 avenue.

Several blocks north, the men pulled bottles out of their pockets and slugged him over the head, stunning him into semi-unconsciousness.

FOUND DAZED

Mr. Carrigan stated he did not know what else had happened to him at 5:55 a.m. he was found in a dazed condition and brought to the police station.

It was found that Mr. Carrigan's pockets had been ripped out of his trousers and that $45 in cash and a $33 cheque had been stolen.

He was taken to hospital for treatment where it was found that injuries were not serious.

City police working in co-operation with army officials are in search of the two men.

Newfoundland Blaze Takes Lives of 100

By C. E. A. JEFFERY

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 14—(CP)—Wearied searchers rested today after the last remaining body was removed from the charred, blackened ruins of the K. of C. hostel here, swept by flames Saturday night with the loss of 100 lives and injuries to 102 others of the 500 dancers thronging the hall for the weekly barn dance.

Many of the victims were servicemen, to whom the hostel had been an important recreation centre during their stay in the island's capital. Next-of-kin have been notified, and it is expected names of the men will be released some time today.

Earlier it was reported 110 had died in the savage fire that raced rapidly through the hall, trapping scores within sight of the exits. Later counts of the bodies scaled the death toll down to 100, of whom 39 have been identified. The figure may be changed again when the final check-up is made.

RECOVER BODIES

Since the fire was brought under control early Sunday morning, police, firemen, civilians and members of the armed services had been toiling to recover the bodies, some using picks and shovels and

Operation of "Owl" Service Is Successful

Revenue from the first day's operation of the extended "owl" service on Edmonton's street railway system was approximately $50 in excess of operational costs, according to figures released Monday by City Commissioner Gibb.

He said that a total of 553 persons utilized the service on the opening day, and that revenue was $82.95. It was estimated that cost of operation of the service on the two lines was between $25 and $30.

GIVEN REAL START

About 200 passengers are needed each night to clear the $25 expenses on the service from 12:30 to 2 a.m. He expressed his pleasure with the popularity of the service Saturday night. "It gave the venture a real start, and we received many telephone calls commending the service. There would appear to be considerable interest in it," he said, "and I am confident the patronage will be sustained."

Special boxes were used for the but conductors found these special collection of the 15-cents cash fare, boxes inconvenient. Mr. Ferrier stated, and plans are being made to permit the use of the ordinary fare boxes installed on trams.

A total of 293 passengers rode on the blue and gold route—North Edmonton to the West End—and 260 on the white line—Highlands to the South Side.

DIFFICULT JOB

A close check was kept on the 15-cent fare, or three adult tickets, but at some of the intersections, where 25 or more passengers boarded the street cars, this was extreme ly difficult.

Six trams were used for the service. They will run approximately 100 miles each night at an estimated cost of $25. Hours in the running schedule on Saturday night will be "smoothed over," Mr. Ferrier stated.

Johnny and Rita

Rita Hayworth Kisses Lucky City Sailor Boy

Lucky, lucky Johnny! He never thought the navy would be anything like this! The smiling sailor in the accompanying picture is Petty Officer Johnny Ewasiuk of Edmonton, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Ewasiuk, who at the moment this picture was taken was celebrating his 18th birthday on Nov. 18 last in New York City.

He looks calm, considering the circumstances, as he prepares to receive a birthday kiss from the heart-throb (everyone knows her) film actress Rita Hayworth. Two of her recent pictures seen in Edmonton were "Tales of Manhattan" and "My Gal Sal."

PO. Ewasiuk visited New York to have a fling on his birthday. And what a fling! A cake with candles and a kiss from Rita.

Johnny, whose brother Henry is employed at the Edmonton Auto Spring Works, corner of 95 street and Jasper avenue, was educated at Queen's Avenue and Sacred Heart schools and was formerly employed as an usher at the Dreamland theatre.

He enlisted in the navy in Edmonton in August, 1941, and has seen service on the East Coast. He was home on leave last fall.

In a recent letter home he told of celebrating his birthday on Broadway and of meeting Rita Hayworth. "He's the lucky one," said Brother Henry, Monday, when shown the accompanying picture. Incidentally, Johnny is single.

PO. Ewasiuk also has three sisters, all living in Edmonton. They are Mrs. Mary Lubin, Mrs. Jean Mazurchuk and Mrs. Elsie Wakul.

Taxi Operators To Get More Gas

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Taxi operators will be allowed a maximum quota of 750 gallons for the period November-March, inclusive, Transit Controller G. S. Gray has announced in a circular letter received by operators here.

The letter, which is addressed to all taxi operators in Canada, says complaints have been made by some operators that they did not receive notice of gasoline rationing for taxis until so late in November that they had consumed much of their allowable quota.

(The original announcement of rationing made by Mr. Gray Nov. 6, said taxis would be restricted to 2,000 miles a month. This was presumed this would give the average taxi about 100 gallons a month or 500 gallons for the November-March period.)

Vaunted Nazis In Full Flight Across Libya

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE

LONDON, Dec. 14—(BUP)—A German army for the first time in World War No. 2 abandoned a major defence line today without even putting up a fight and the vaunted Afrika Korps of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was in open flight westward through Libya.

Germany admitted that Rommel had retired from his El Agheila line 475 miles east of Tunisia, and dispatches and communiques indicated that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's Eighth British Army, exerting merciless pressure in its resumed drive, was nowhere meeting more than a show of resistance.

Indications mounted that the German high command had abandoned hope of holding Libya and would concentrate on holding the northeast corner of Tunisia, only 95 miles from its supply base of Sicily.

IS OUT MANOEUVRED

The Eighth Army had decisively out-manoeuvred Rommel, Adolf Hitler's master desert tactician, by assembling such strength that a fight was impossible.

to have been deported from occupied countries to Germany, swelling the European slave ranks to more than 8,000,000.

Hitler also has demanded that Holland mobilize 240,000 Dutch for the German army and that Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania furnish troops to make up for Nazi losses in Russia and North Africa, according to reports reaching London.

FORCIBLY ENROLLED

Fighting French headquarters in London reported that Hitler had ordered 400,000 French workers to the Reich within two months. It was recalled that Berlin recently demanded 150,000 skilled workers but fewer than 90,000 Frenchmen responded with the result that nine out of ten skilled workers were enrolled forcibly.

Hard-Surfaced North Highway Is Advocated

Construction by the provincial government of a hard-surfaced highway from Edmonton to Dawson Creek will be urged by the Alberta Board of Trade and Agriculture as a result of a resolution passed at its annual meeting which opened Monday at the Macdonald hotel.

It was resolved also that a request be made to the provincial and Dominion authorities that the Alcan highway be officially known as the Alaska highway in the post-war period. The resolutions were submitted by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and were sponsored before the meeting by C. H. Grant, K.C.

It was suggested that during the post-war transition period that an adequate adjustment be made in Old Age Pension regulations, which, if in effect at the time of demobilization, will tend to alleviate the situation by permitting the retirement of workers in the higher age brackets, thus facilitating in some measure the re-establishment of servicemen.

While the suggestion was not translated into a direct resolution the meeting decided that the views should be conveyed to Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. Ian Mackenzie, minister of national health and pensions.

Manitoba Govt. Caucus Called to Discuss Future

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14.—(CP)—A caucus of members of the Manitoba coalition government has been called for Dec. 22, the government announced today.

The caucus, it is understood, will consider future of the coalition government, a sequence to the election of Premier John Bracken to the Dominion leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party at the National Conservative convention here last week.

Informed sources stated today that the coalition government of 26 Liberal-Progressives, 12 Conservatives, five Independents and three Social Credit members is almost certain to continue.

Labor Minister S. J. Farmer, C.C.F. leader, resigned from the provincial cabinet last week and announced the support of the three C.C.F. members in the coalition had been withdrawn.

The caucus may decide who is to be Mr. Bracken's successor as premier. The caucus recommendation, when it is made, will be forwarded to Hon. R. F. McWilliams, lieutenant-governor of Manitoba.

Several cabinet members have been mentioned in government circles for the premiership but Hon. S. S. Garson, provincial treasurer and Liberal-Progressive member, is believed to be favored by Mr. Bracken.

Mr. Bracken was at his office today and likely will preside at the cabinet meeting tomorrow.

It was understood one of the other cabinet ministers, probably Mr. Willis, will administer the labor department's affairs pending appointment of a successor for Mr. Farmer. The appointment may not be made until a new premier has been sworn in.

tracks along which the British army raced in pursuit.

The German sappers work in relays night and day laying these mines. Some are heavy anti-tank mines. Others are anti-personnel booby traps.

Rommel has used thousands of these type bombs very effectively. At one phase of his retreat from El Alamein he ran short of mines. He overcame this difficulty by using British aerial bombs which he had captured in Tobruk. He converted them into booby traps.

SORELY PRESSED

The German field marshal must have been sorely pressed before he took the decision to run from El Agheila. With only a few tanks left after the debacle on the Alamein position, he knows if he is caught by the British on the open road that stretches along the Mediterranean coast to Tripoli he will be destroyed by the superior forces of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery.

Rommel must have conceded that desperate remedies were necessary to cope with a desperate situation. His forces, stretched out along the highway and adjoining desert tracks, are excellent targets for British and American bombers and fighters, which continue to wield complete mastery of the skies in Libya. Large numbers of American pilots are engaged in the aerial battering to which the Afrika Korps and the Italians are being subjected.

His total strength cannot exceed 25,000, chiefly Germans. The backbone of his fighting troops is the 90th Light Division, once the crack enemy shock force. It has been badly battered by the New Zealanders and is only a shaky skeleton of its original self.

SHOULDN'T BE LONG

If Britain can corner Rommel and bring him to battle the final smash should not be long in delivery. Montgomery has overcome his chief difficulty in transporting an army with supplies all the way from Alamein to the El Agheila region. The Imperials have pursuit forces specially trained to outrace and harry Rommel.

If the British sappers can win the race with the German sappers and lift the thousands of mines and booby traps which bar swift progress, the Eighth Army yet may be able to catch their man and crush the issue before Berlin is able to answer Rommel's appeals for help.

others tearing away debris with their hands."

Mobile cranes were pressed into service to remove bucked steel girders and twisted ironwork, while trucks manned at steel cables pulling down dangerous parts of the ruins, as the search went on.

The fire, one of the worst disasters in Newfoundland's history, broke out shortly after 11 p.m. Tuesday when first knew something was wrong when startled cries of "fire" interrupted a radio broadcast of barn dance music coming from the hostel auditorium. Then the microphone went dead.

BLOCK PASSAGEWAYS

Flames roared through the L shaped, two storey-building, bursting spectacularly from the doors and windows. Scores were trapped inside as they packed together in front of the exits in a mad scramble to escape. Piles of bodies blocked the passageways when firemen forced their way in after battling the flames more than three hours in bitter weather.

Upstairs were dormitories and living quarters, and some servicemen sleeping there escaped by leaping from the windows. Others were trapped.

In the auditorium downstairs Joe Murphy, master of ceremonies for the entertainment program, tried to make himself heard above the cries and shrieks as he advised the crowd to escape by way of the stage. When he turned around the back of the stage was aflame, so he led his troupe to a nearby window through which they escaped.

HAD EXTINGUISHERS

The building was well supplied with fire extinguishers and hoses, but in the panic no one thought of using them, even if there had been time. Cause of the fire has not yet been determined, and there are different reports of where it started. Some survivors reported hearing an explosion from the kitchen a few seconds before the flames entered the dance hall.

Inquiries have been started by police and by the various military authorities in an effort to discover the cause of the holocaust.

Every available facility was pressed into use to care for the injured, and offers of aid came in from outside points.

said that the vast enslavement of French labor contemplated by Germany may lead to grave trouble. He said that resistance was growing daily.

Belgian sources in London reported that since November, between 100,000 and 200,000 workers has been reported to Germany and northern France to construct fortifications. There are already 300,000 Belgian workers in Germany.

BELGIAN ROUNDUPS

A Belgian spokesman said that "practically all of our young men have been deported. There are new roundups every dawn."

The Belgian government was advised by its underground that Germans have evacuated 10,000 residents of coastal areas and had sent all children inland.

"Our information is that German fears of invasion have led to increased building of new coastal defences," the Belgian spokesman said.

Norway, one of the last occupied countries to feel the demand for workers, has been forced to send another 100,000, one third of all its industrial workers—to Germany or to work on Norwegian fortifications. An additional 200,000 previously had been employed by the Nazis in Germany and elsewhere.

DEMANDS IN BALKANS

With more than 2,000,000 Poles and Czechs already enslaved, it was learned that trains and motor convoys were leaving every day with more workers from these conquered nations for Germany.

Hitler, it was understood, is not trying to mobilize labor on a large scale in the Balkan countries. He he concentrated on demands for troops to reinforce his armies in Russia, Yugoslavia and Greece.

ing their forces between the Volga and Don rivers. Driven off at one point, front dispatches said, they reformed their infantry and tank groups and drove a wedge into another section of the Russian lines where Russian artillery hemmed them in. When the battle cleared, 800 enemy troops were dead and 22 German tanks were damaged or burned out. Ten additional tanks were lost in fruitless subsequent attacks.

Northwest of the city, the Russians further improved their positions despite determined German counter-attacks. The enemy gained nothing and lost an additional 1,200 men, front reports said.

OTHER FIGHTING

West of Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, the Germans continued to lose heavily in tanks and manpower, driving their troops into determined counter attacks which failed to halt the slow but steady Soviet advance. In the last 24 hours, the enemy had lost 1,500 men and 18 tanks.

Soviet bombers and Stormovik dive bombers stepped up the pace of their activity in the Rzhev-Vyazma-Velliki Luki triangle where large groups of German tanks were reported attempting to localize a Russian breach east of Veliki Luki. An enemy battalion that tried to penetrate the Soviet lines was trapped and encircled east of Veliki Luki.

The fighting was quieter in the streets of ruined Stalingrad.

DISLODGE NAZIS

Attacking strongly in the northern factory districts, the Russians were said to have dislodged the Germans from 11 pill boxes and several fortified buildings with the loss of 180 men, one field gun, five machine guns, 17 sub-machine guns and other equipment.

Continuing this attack, the noon communique reported, the Russians smashed a series of dugouts and block houses.

On the northwest-Stalingrad and southwest-Stalingrad fronts the Germans were counter-attacking strongly but vainly, the noon communique reported, after the Russians stormed and captured a series of important heights northwest of Stalingrad and destroyed 50 dugouts.

The famous Red Army artillery opened a heavy bombardment against the Germans northwest of Stalingrad, aiding the infantry to throw back two counter-attacks in which about 250 Germans died.

Yesterday the Germans had attacked fiercely southwest of Stalingrad and succeeded in wedging into the Russian lines in one sector. But Russian artillery and tank busters, killed about 800 Germans and damaged or destroyed seven tanks.

ACTION IN CAUCASUS

Northeast of Tuapse, on the Black Sea part of the Caucasus front, the noon communique said, Russian artillery and trench mortar men of a single unit destroyed 68 enemy dugouts, 15 machine guns, four field guns and eight anti-aircraft guns in 24 hours.

Rommel Corps In Full Retreat From 8th Army

cul off or pulverized wherever he made a stand.

Jubilant over the Eighth Army drive, and encouraged by the beginning of Axis attacks in Tunisia and a new aerial offensive by Allied aircraft, military quarters pointed out that Rommel had given up the Agheila line without resistance.

"It is interesting to see a great German army for the first time faced by superior numbers, not even trying to fight," a communique said.

FARTHEST WEST POINT

In smashing through the Agheila line the Eighth Army under Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery had reached its farthest westward point.

It was indicated that the Imperial forces had crossed the border from Cyrenaica, eastern half of Libya, into Tripolitania at a point about 10 miles west of El Agheila and now had probably reached the vicinity of El Muglaa, another 10 miles westward.

As the Eighth Army renewed its drive, the American Army Air Force in Tunisia opened a heavy offensive on such key Axis bases as Tunis, Bizerte and Sousse, on the east coast.

The Admiralty here announced the sinking by British submarines in recent days of four Axis reinforcement-supply ships between North Africa and Italy.

SINK ENEMY SHIPS

One was an armed merchant cruiser. Another was a big tanker, found crippled by Allied airplane attack, and sunk by a torpedo. Two supply ships were attacked off the Tripolitania coast; one of medium size was blown up, the other, a small vessel, was destroyed by gun fire.

In addition submarines scored three torpedo hits, with unknown results, in an attack on a convoy consisting of two supply ships and three destroyers within 30 miles of Naples. At Burat on the Tripolitania coast submarines attacked in sight of shore and damaged two vessels with gun fire. They torpedoed and blew up enemy ammunition barges at Ras Ali.

An Allied headquarters communique issued here announced that on Saturday enemy attacks of the British First Army lines north and south of Medjez-El-Bab, 30 miles southwest of Tunis, had been repulsed.

ALLIED LOSSES LIGHT

The communique said further reports of the repulse of an enemy column which attacked from the north Friday indicated that about 100 enemy troops had been killed in addition to more than 30 made prisoners.

It was noted that Allied casualties in the actions were comparatively low.

Axis radio broadcasts continued to claim successes against the Allies in Tunisia.

Germany said that west of Tebourba, between Medjez-El-Bab and Tunis, Allied troops had been dislodged from two fortified points with the loss of 15 tanks and said numerous British troops had been captured along with 10 tanks, a battery of field guns, many machine guns, four tractors, 18 trucks and considerable ammunition and food.

GENERAL REVEALS: Secret U.S. Aerial Weapons To Deal Axis Smashing Blow

RANDOLPH FIELD, Tex., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Lt.-Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of United States army air forces, said yesterday "we have a secret weapon or two up our aerial sleeves that will deal paralyzing blows to our enemies."

Moreover "Entirely new 'battle-wagons' are on the way," he reported, and recalled that he already had said the present-day big bombers of the B-17 and B-24 type (the Flying Fortresses and Liberators) "Were perhaps the last of the 'small' bombers."

Addressing graduating classes of four army flying schools—Randolph, Kelly, Brooks and Hondo fields—Arnold epitomized his disclosures with this statement:

TO "DEMONSTRATE"

"We'll soon put on a special demonstration for Hitler and Hirohito. We don't think that they are going to like it, either."

The standard .50-calibre machine guns of the army planes are "terrific weapons of aerial desiruction" and one of the outstanding successes of the war, Arnold said, but they will "seem like peashooters compared with the firepower that we are putting into our newest big ships."

Arnold said production of planes in the United States is now more than 4,000 a month, the expansion program will double that rate, and that United States production alone is more than the combined output of Germany and Japan.

"I tell you now that both the German and Japanese air forces are on the downgrade," he continued. "They have passed their peak. We are just approaching our peak in airplane production and combat crew training."

MUST BE CAUTIOUS

He cautioned, however, that "we must not rest on our laurels and think smugly that all is well, for we know it will not be long before the Germans come out with an answer to our Flying Fortresses, and we must be ready for it when it comes."

To date, Arnold reported, army flyers have sunk 51 enemy ships, scored 21 believed sunk, and hit and damaged 159 of all types, from battleships to destroyers, tankers, cargo ships and troop carriers.

From Feb. 1 to Dec. 5 the army air forces "have definitely destroyed 928 enemy planes and probably destroyed 276 in aerial combat," he said, with a loss of 120 planes definitely plus 104 missing.

Senate Speaker, Georges Parent, Dies Suddenly

MONTREAL, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Senator Georges Parent of Quebec, Speaker of the Senate, dropped dead in the Queen's Hotel here today. He would have been 63 tomorrow.

Senator Parent was in Montreal on business at the time of his sudden death.

Edmond Taschereau, brother of L. A. Taschereau, former premier of Quebec, was with Senator Parent when he was stricken with a heart attack in his hotel room, just as he was about to attend a meeting of the Quebec Power Company.

Senator Parent was dead before the hotel physician could reach the room.

He was the son of the late S. N. Parent, former premier of Quebec province and for 12 years mayor of Quebec.

Born Dec. 15, 1879, at Quebec, Senator Parent was educated at Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere, Que., St. Dunstan's College and Laval University. He was a member of the Quebec legal firm of Parent, Taschereau and Cannon.

BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

He was director of several Canadian companies, including Le Soleil, Quebec daily newspaper, the Sun Trust Company, Southern Canada Power Company. He was vice-president of Citadel Brick Limited.

He is survived by his widow, the former Kathleen Grenier of Quebec, and two sons, Lieut. Simon George Parent, and Jacques Parent.

He was summoned to the Senate in 1930, after representing Montmorency riding in the House of Commons as a Liberal from 1904 to 1911 and Quebec west from 1921 until called to the Senate.

Bombay Bombing

BOMBAY, Dec. 14.—(CP)—One police constable was killed and 11 others wounded when a home-made bomb was thrown at a group of police in a busy district of Bombay, it was reported yesterday. One pedestrian also was injured. Fifty arrests were made.

900-Ton British Destroyer Sunk

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—The admiralty last night announced the loss of the destroyer Penylan.

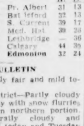

A brief admiralty communique described the Penylan as of the Hunt class of destroyers but did not give details of her sinking or the number of casualties.

The Penylan apparently was only recently commissioned because she is not listed in Jane's authoritative shipping guide.

Hunt class destroyers have a displacement of 905 tons and have four four-inch guns and eight smaller guns. Many destroyers of this class have been built since 1939.

Hard-Surfaced North Highway Is Advocated

merce, D. S. Moffatt, K.C., Calgary, and C. E. Garnett, Edmonton, were appointed a committee to make representations to the proper authorities that any railway built to Alaska should follow the Alberta route. A resolution calling for the utilization of this route was passed by the meeting.

The following were appointed a special committee to interview authorities concerning the construction of a hard-surfaced road from Edmonton to Dawson Creek: C. H. Grant, K.C.; J. Gordon Butler, and J. Fitzallen, secretary of the organization.

Rekuest for the extension of war industry in Western Canada was contained in another resolution which passed unanimously.

MAYOR GREETS DELEGATES

Greetings of the city of Edmonton were extended to the delegates at the meeting by Mayor John W. Fry at a luncheon at the Macdonald hotel. Greetings of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce were extended by A. M. MacDonald, vice-president of that body. J. B. Holden, Vegreville, president of the organization, was chairman at the luncheon.

OTHER MOTIONS

Sessions will continue throughout Monday afteraoon at which numerous resolutions are scheduled for disposal. These include resolution dealing with the present coal shortage in rural areas; taxation on oil royalties; bus and truck traffic; taxation of co-operatives; labor wages ceiling; preferential patronage of Canadian National Railways and a resolution calling for the prosecution of persons making seditious utterances.

Need for immediate planning for rehabilitation of men of the armed services was stressed by S. C. Hecksbert, Vermilion, president of the Alberta committee of the Canadian Legion. Mr. Heckbert was guest speaker at the luncheon.

NEED FOR PLANNING

Emphasizing this need for immediate planning, Mr. Heckbert pointed out that more than 70,000 men had been demobilized already. He said this was not a matter that can be safely left for the return of peace.

He said the numbers of men discharged was the sounding board of danger, and the very definite responsibility of all citizens in view of the conditions permitted during the depression years when thousands of young men who might have been gainfully employed were permitted to wander throughout the country seeking work that was not made available to them.

Yanks Unleash Air Blitz On Axis Ports in Africa

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, Dec. 14.—(AP)—American bombers, led by Flying Fortresses, rained destruction on the docks of Bizerte, Tunis and Sousse yesterday in their greatest sustained aerial blitz of the North African campaign.

The largest force of bombers ever to participate in an attack on the Axis in Tunisia hit at least one ship, left flames roaring over the waterfronts of the three main harbors and returned with only one bomber damaged, spokesman said.

The Fortresses led off the Allied blitz to knock out Nazi communications and supply lines by an attack on the docks and warehouses at Bizerte where they scored "many hits," the spokesman said.

PRECISION BOMBING

The Fortresses followed this up with a precision bombing of the same area which already was in flames while another large force of "the big bombers was blasting the Tunis waterfront, scoring hits on a supply ship which later sank.

Billy Mitchell twin-motored North American B-25's took part in the big aerial show by attacking Sousse Harbor, south of Tunis, despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

Twin-motored Martin B-26's wound up the day's air activity with an attack on a railway bridge northwest of Sfax.

SERVED IN QUEBEC

After acting as assistant priest at the Quebec City cathedral, he was appointed rector there. He was successively archdeacon at Qu'Appelle, Sask., and Edmonton before being named a bishop.

No relatives live in Canada.

Bishop Burgett had been in indifferent health for some time and he suffered a stroke a week ago. He died in his sleep.

Funeral services will be held in St. Mary's church here Tuesday. The body will be shipped to Jasper, Alta., where interment will take place.

Bishop Burgett was born at Calcutta, India in 1869. He attended public school at Radley, England, where he gained distinction in various sports, especially in boat racing.

He attended Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and graduated with degrees of B.A. and M.A. During his stay at Cambridge he was a member of the First Eight in college rowing.

He was ordained in 1897 by Duke of Wellington Regiment, gaining his lieuteanntcy and captaincy in 1896 he resigned his commissions to become a student and minister of the Anglican church at Cuddesbon Theological College.

INCREASED FUND

The Bishopric Endowment fund was greatly increased during his years of activities in Edmonton.

Following Bishop Gray's retirement in 1931, Archdeacon Burgett became bishop in January of 1932. In his capacity as bishop he was especially interested in ministry to children and young people.

The summer camp for children at Kapasiwin exists today mainly through the efforts of Bishop Burgett.

He resigned the bishopric in 1940 to go into retirement at Victoria.

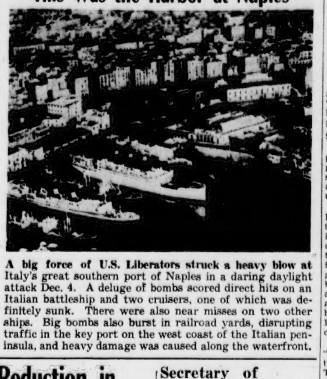

He was the holder of a Doctor of Divinity degree from St. John's college, Manitoba, and from Trinity college, Toronto.

'This Was the Harbor at Naples

A big force of U.S. Liberators struck a heavy blow at Italy's great southern port of Naples in a daring daylight attack Dec. 4. A deluge of bombs scored direct hits on an Italian battleship and two cruisers, one of which was definitely sunk. There were also near misses on two other ships. Big bombs also burst in railroad yards, disrupting traffic in the key port on the west coast of the Italian peninsula, and heavy damage was caused along the waterfront.

Reduction in Auto License Fees Is Asked

CALGARY, Dec. 14.—(CP)—A resolution, recommending the Alberta government be asked to make a substantial reduction in annual automobile license fees for the duration of the war was passed by the board of directors of the Alberta Motor Association at their annual meeting here Saturday.

The sharp reduction in the use of automobiles as the result of gas rationing and the fact that the "government is and will not be able to maintain our highways even up to the standards of the past" were cited in the preamble of the resolution as reasons why the license fees should be reduced.

The Alberta government was commended for investing in Victory Bonds funds from the gasoline tax and license fees, and a resolution urged that the said funds be used after the war for "the sole purpose of a highway system which will be adequate for post-war needs of the province in view of the completion of the Alaska highway."

Immediate establishment by the Alberta government of an all-weather highway connection between Edmonton and Dawson Creek to link up with the Alaska highway was urged.

A. W. Maguire, Calgary, was re-elected president.

He achieved his main ambition in his later years, that of living until 1940 to witness the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the founding of the order.

Early Action Expected on By-Elections

OTTAWA, Dec. 14. — (CP) — Early action by the government to fix a date for by-elections in Selkirk, Man., and Humboldt, Sask. is expected this week, primarily to make it possible for John Bracken, the newly elected leader of the Progessive Conservative party to seek a seat in the house of commons. Mr. Bracken is Manitoba premier.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, after Mr. Bracken had been elected leader at the national Conservative convention in Winnipeg Friday, announced:

"While not wishing to interfere in any way with the rights of the electors of any constituency to select candidates of their own choice in any by-election, I might say that the government would not be disposed, because of the necessary procedure, to delay in any way Mr. Bracken's possible entry into the house."

NO GOVT. OPPOSITION

This was taken to mean that it would be the government's wish not to oppose Mr. Bracken's candidacy in a by-election although the decision would be up to local riding political workers, and that the government would fix polling dates in vacant ridings as soon as procedure would permit.

It would take about 40 days from the time the date is named to hold those by-elections, and it would appear that Mr. Bracken is unlikely to have a seat in time to take his place as leader of the official opposition when parliament meets Jan. 27.

Installations at Salamaua, Japanese base some 125 miles north of Buna, were attacked in a night raid.

attitude" this mother said to me: "Believe me, Signore, the real Italian prays for a British victory. I pray for that!"

SADDEST OF SIGHTS

But the saddest of sights is this: patches in the sand, shallow, elongated mounds, a dozen crosses sticking nakedly into the sun, and a sign: "Here lie buried twelve unknown Italians."

Fatal casualties in the Western Desert are three times as many as the injured. Ordinarily, the ratio is three injured to one dead. In the desert, however, it is often some time before the wounded man is found in the sand. By then, sand gangrene has set in, the sun has broiled out much of his vitality, and often his water is gone. And always casualty-clearing stations or base hospitals necessarily are 50 to 100 miles distance from the scene of action.

Only those injured who are "walk-away casualties" survive their wounds in the Western Desert. That's the reason the British soldiers say that if an enemy bullet is to touch them, let it be a definitely good-night piece of lead.

Out of the flame-hot, sand-filled Khamsin of the Western Desert the fighter pilot emerges like a fade-in sequence in a movie. He wobbles and teeters at first, a towering, burly figure just recovering from the impact of the ground heat. He is unfastening his cloth tunic, pulling off his helmet, loosening his pistol holster. His blond, straight hair is matted and twisted with sweat, and his forehead and the sides of his nose glisten with it.

WARM BEER

Inside the tent there is relief from the sand storm. A beer is set down in front of the pilot, warm beer, but wet. It's good enough to remove sand.

He wipes his mouth with the back of his hand. His eyes are red-rimmed, his face stubble-bearded. The two thin blue stripes on his shoulder make him a flight lieutenant.

He is blond, blue-eyed, fair-skinned, and if you dressed Nordic-looking Flight Lieutenant Archie in a Luftwaffe uniform he'd look as if he had just stepped out of Marshal Goering's office. That same thought came when I was among the German troops in Yugoslavia. Strip them of their gray-green uniforms and some of them would be typical of the boys just down from Cambridge.

"Good show?" someone asked Flight Lieutenant Archie. It's somewhat out of the ordinary for him to be down here at Sidi Barrani. This is the last landing field before the German and Italian positions at Sollum.

This sand-swept, desolate, top-of-the-world silence of the desert, where the wind always keeps the flying sand stretched taut, is not an aerdrome. Too close for that. It serves only as a refueling base. But he'd landed here in his Curtiss P40, the ship the British call a Tomahawk.

BIT OF A MIX

"Why," the pilot says, "it wasn't too bad actually. Had a bit of a mix with Jerry. Messerschmitt 109. But I rather think there was an Eyetie pilot in it."

The flight lieutenant's accents Oxonian and his inclination is to be as reticent as the lions of Trafalgar square.

"Chased him all over the place. Used almost all my gas and almost all my ammunition. Really exasperating. He apparently objected to a spot of fighting. Dash it all," he suddenly broke out, "the fellow seemed extraordinarily keen to break off."

He appears to wince, as he says that. He hates to accuse another pilot, even an enemy, of lack of courage.

"Devilishly pretty morning up there. Six thousand feet and you are out of this bloody sand storm altogether."

AND NO FLIES

Tis eyes travel to the flies blackening the table and scrambling to get inside his empty beer glass.

"And no flies up there, rather."

He pronounces it rawther-r-r," and works one eye as though a monocle should be there.

Mutual friends and my purposes as an American war correspondent established, Flight "Loot" Archie relaxes.

"We run into more Eyeties now than we used to. They don't do much, actually. Deuced thing to say, but as a matter of fact they just float around the sky and look decorative."

At that a smile breaks over the face of the base officer, his eyes inflamed with days of sand and wind in them, and for once the utterly bored look goes out of his face.

A sergeant comes into the tent and tells Lieutenant Archie his ship is ready. "Right-ho." He picks up his tunic and pistol.

As he steps out of the tent his eyes narrow to slits to face the driving sand, twisting and sweeping across the field.

"Thanks for the beer," he calls, and fades into the mist of the sand storm.

More Co-Operation Urged in Medicine

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Dr. A. E. Archer of Lamont, Alta., president of the Canadian Medical Association, in Ottawa Saturday for discussions pertaining to post-war health services, urged greater co-operation between government health departments and Canadian doctors in advancing the preventive and curative aspects of medicine.

"The Canadian Medical Association is greatly in favor of a closer relationship being established between the public health and preventive medicine services, usually represented by government department of health officials, and the curative medical services, as represented by the practitioner of medicine," he said in a statement.

"Only in this way can more emphasis be placed upon the prevention of disease, thereby lessening the incidence of illness and the need for curative services."

Chains Off

Canadians will very generally approve the action of their Government and that of Great Britain in unshackling prisoners of war. To chain them was the impulsive reaction to the manacling of our men by the Nazis. But other than satisfy the urge to "get even" nothing has been accomplished by doing it.

So far as known Berlin has not responded in like manner to the invitation of the Swiss authorities, nor agreed to do so. Perhaps from the Nazi point of view it would be weakness to concede even that much to the claims of humanity and civilized convention.

But the example has been set, the invitation has been given, the Allied attitude defined toward a custom handed down from the dark ages. To the Allied peoples, or most of them, this will be satisfactory in itself, whether or not the example is followed and the invitation accepted by the enemy.

The chain, except where necessary as an instrument of detention, is a symbol of slavery. The symbol is fitting to the aims and methods of the Axis powers. It does not represent what the Allies are fighting for, nor the ways in which they want to conduct war.

—V—

"Pinch" Transport

At Stalingrad and in Tunisia the Nazis are depending on transport planes to carry reinforcements of men and supplies to their marooned forces. In Tunisia they are said to be even using gliders to land men, these being cheaper and more quickly built.

The numbers of these carriers which are being shot down in both areas show they must have been constructed in mass to meet conditions where land and water transport might not be capable of use. The record also suggests that in operation the air transports are not dependable in keeping with their numbers.

The Russians appear to be knocking down these planes at the average rate of a score per day, which implies a heavy loss of the ill-fated men they carry. In Tunisia the Allies have been less successful, only because of a lack of forward bases for their fighter craft, which defect they are correcting as fast as possible.

The value of the plane as a transport under any favorable conditions is not to be questioned. But for the use of troops in an area under siege by vigilant and well-equipped enemy forces, these have obvious limits which are becoming apparent. The great carriers are necessarily slow, and to put slow planes against fast ones and good ground defences is costly.

Stalingrad will not be captured, nor the Tunisian tip held, by plane-imported Axis troops and supplies. That is a safe assumption.

—V—

The Kind Also Counts

The Allied forces in northern Tunisia have been held up by the same factor that caused the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse—lack of air power. They had plenty of bombers, but no forward bases from which their shorter range fighting planes could operate. So while their bombers have been hammering such distant targets as Sicily and the toe of the Italian boot, Axis bombers in turn were able to pound the approaches to Tunis and Bizerte.

There was a somewhat different story toward the end of last week when, despite pouring rain and a sticky mud surface, we had apparently been made which enabled the Allied fighters to get into action in greater, though still insufficient, numbers. But it was not pretended that the scale had been turned and air superiority wrested from the enemy.

Until that is done, ding-dong fighting has to be expected around the Tunisian bridge-head. Only swift interceptors in flocks can stop the transport planes from ferrying more Axis troops into the area, and dive-bombers are needed to help strafe the enemy ground forces out of their defence lines.

The moral of the hold-up is the same as that disclosed on so many other fronts, that adequate air power is indispensable to an army, as it is to a fleet. Adequate not only in numbers but in the kind of planes suitable for the particular job in hand. When the Allies get enough of those in the Tunisian skies the stalemate will end.

Mr. Meighen

The resignation of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen from the leadership of the Conservative party probably marked the end of a career in public life which began 35 years ago. But he is still younger than many men who have refused to quit the political field, is physically and mentally sound, and shows no sign that the zest for battle has faded away. He may continue to devote his undoubted talents to political affairs.

Mr. Meighen was twice Prime Minister of Canada. He succeeded Sir Robert Borden in 1920, but his government was defeated in the general election which followed. His "shadow" cabinet of 1926 lasted only a few days.

The following six years were given to private business, but in 1932 Mr. Bennett called Mr. Meighen to the Senate, made him a minister without portfolio and government leader in the Upper House. He remained a member of the Senate until a few months ago, when he resigned to contest the South York seat in the House of Commons, but met defeat. The convention held in Winnipeg this week was a direct outcome of this reverse.

Mr. Meighen's abilities are great. He stands and has long stood in the first rank of our public men. But he somehow seemed to lack what it takes to gain and hold the support of the public. A sharp tongue and a flair for using it without discrimination may have been partly to blame.

It would be a graceful act on the part of Prime Minister King to offer Mr. Meighen re-appointment to the Senate. Premiers have not thus treated political opponents in the past, but the precedent would not be without advantage. The country loses something when a man of long experience and proven abilities is excluded from public life by the adverse fortune of political war.

—V—

Because it brought the United States into the war, the attack on Pearl Harbor eclipsed the simultaneous and equally treacherous attacks on Hong Kong and Malaya. Japan had no more claim to these territories than it had to the Hawaiian islands, and the attacks were equally infamous. Mr. Churchill's assurance that these outrages will also be avenged and the spoils taken away from the bandits is plain, and a timely definition of British intentions.

Saturday Night Radio Review

A Summary of a Broadcast Delivered Over CFRN December 12

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Speaking relatively, one may say that this has been a dull week on the major fronts.

The Russian situation presents a constantly shifting picture with gains and losses for our Allies about evenly mixed. On the whole, the Russians have had the best of it, and, without recording any decisive victories, appear to have placed large sections of the invading forces in extreme tactical jeopardy.

Harold L. Weir

The situation in that area, while it may not cause jubilation, may be said to be increasingly hopeful. At any rate, Stalin is in the position of being able to inflict crushing defeats on the Germans once the opening of land hostilities in southern Europe creates an imperative necessity for the further shifting of German forces.

The North African sectors have been similarly quiet and yet similarly hopeful. The lull in the Mediterranean area is also the calm before the storm.

Great events are impending there and the lack of live action simply means that both sides are manoeuvering into position for a great decisive engagement.

Undercurrents

The comparative inaction in the Pacific theatre of war has also caused considerable anxious comment this week. I shall deal with that phase, however, presently.

But if this week was dull on all the fronts, it was exceedingly lively in the way of speculative undercurrents. This week, in other words, constituted the innings of the politicians and the war commentators. For as military activity declined, speculative activity increased.

For instance, Hitler's shift in his general staff and reports of unrest in Italy seemed to indicate that the Axis partners are growing nervous over the turn of events.

Hitler's appointment of General Kurt Zeitzler to chief of the general staff and the consequent kicking upstairs of Zeitzler's close connection with Heinrich Himmler, head of the powerful SS corps and commander of the Elite Guard.

With his huge army of secret police and equally trained black-shirts, Himmler actually has more power in Germany than any other man, except, of course, Hitler himself. Himmler really has a private army which is supposed to be beyond the machinations of other factions.

This recent shift in command suggests that Hitler has placed his bets on Himmler and is allying himself closely with Himmler to prevent the German army corps from taking over in case of unrest.

This definitely does not mean that general public morale in Germany is cracking or that the people are ready to turn against Hitler. It does mean, though, that Hitler sees the storm signals and has tacitly, if unconsciously, admitted that such things can happen there.

Morale Bad

So far as Italy is concerned, there is no doubt that morale in that country is very bad. The Italian people, robbed and betrayed by the Germans, are hungry and war-sick. They see Mussolini discredited, Italian arms suffering humiliating reverses and their African empire crumbling.

On top of this their chief cities are being bombed mercilessly and the civilian population is terrified.

The peace demonstration in Rome, which was reported from London, may well have been spontaneous. On the other hand, it might have been inspired just as the demonstrations were inspired earlier in the war.

It might very well be that Italian leaders, including Mussolini, are heeding the warnings of Mr. Churchill to get out of the war and are preparing a personal alibi to give Adolf Hitler.

Germany First

The apparent lull in the Pacific fighting, which has puzzled a good many people who cannot understand why Allied forces in that area have not engaged in offensive action, was explained very well this week by Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia.

Mr. Curtin disclosed the fact for the first time that this defensive action is deliberate and according to plan. It is a part of the grand strategy.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, declared Mr. Curtin, arranged between themselves, and their experts, of course, that Germany should be defeated first, Japan secondly. All available offensive force is to be used to crush Hitler before it is turned to crush Japan.

The Pacific war is essentially a holding war and so long as our forces in the Pacific theatre are preventing any further encroachments on the part of the Japanese, they are doing all they need to do under the circumstances.

This throws a new light on recent statements by Mr. Churchill and by American leaders. It explains Mr. Churchill's promise to throw all British power into the Pacific, once Germany is out of the picture. It explains recent American promises to eventually defeat Japan.

It would appear that our leaders are anxious to spare the Japanese the embarrassment of any premature celebrations over our present apparent inaction.

There is another view, of course, that will be obvious to anyone. While it is quite true that we are not promoting any offensive action against the Japanese, at the moment, the disclosure of this plan of Germany first, Japan second, may be intended to mask some new activity in the Pacific.

In short, Mr. Curtin may have intended to lull Japanese suspicions while some great drive on our part is being prepared.

One must be ready for anything these days. And whatever Mr. Curtin intended to convey, he may be sure the Japanese are thoroughly worried and puzzled over it.

Fascist Franco

There is much puzzlement, too, inherent in the latest attitude of Francisco Franco, the fascist dictator of Spain.

I was taken severely to task some weeks ago for venturing to say on this broadcast that Franco would never oppose the Axis.

I was indignantly told that Franco was a great Christian gentleman, devoted to religion and the church, who would never consent to give any aid to Hitler and his godless crew.

My reply was that Franco was first and foremost a fascist, and, at the first chance, would climb on the Axis bandwagon.

Franco may not be actually aboard that bandwagon yet, but he certainly has his foot on the step. And there is a seat all ready for him. This week he loudly protested his admiration for Hitler and the New Order in Europe. Mussolini, he declared, was a great foreign genius. Hitler's present European state was an organization after his own heart.

So much for this great Christian gentleman. There are only two reasons why Franco has not already involved Hitler into Spain for an attack on Gibraltar.

The first is that an actual majority of Spaniards are still opposed to Franco and any flirting with the Axis would cause civil disturbances.

The second is that Hitler is afraid to invade Spain for the purpose of attacking Gibraltar because, the minute he did so, the Allies would move into Spanish Morocco and establish another base from which to attack continental Europe.

Rumor Clinic

The Rumor: That in case any man buys Victory Bonds, the same will be confiscated by the government in the event of his death.

The Fact: The finance department declares that the bonds are to be paid by any debtor but that the money was to be, used to buy Victory Bonds.

The Fact: Ottawa characterizes this suggestion as ludicrous. The Victory Loans have not changed the status of any debtor in any particular. The buying of Victory Bonds is not accepted in any case as a valid reason why debts, if payable under existing law, should not be paid.

The Rumor: That on days when flying is impossible, owing to bad weather, there is sufficient gasoline dumped from the main storage tanks at R.C.A.F. flying fields to permit aerial gasoline rationing to make their daily contracted delivery.

The Fact: Gasoline is ordered from oil companies as required and is usually delivered in railroad tank cars. When these arrive at the R.C.A.F. airports, they are emptied into bulk storage tanks, the quantity received is carefully noted and checked. Bulk storage tanks are under constant armed guard. Not one drop is lost or wasted. Ottawa declares that any substantiated report of gasoline wastage would result in severe disciplinary measures.

The Rumor: That in case of enemy fire shells or bombs damaging them in some manner, they are packed in wooden boxes and dumped in some convenient body of water.

The Fact: Expended military equipment are gathered up and returned to the manufacturers of sheet brass, from which the cartridges are made. The manufacturers pay for these salvaged cartridge cases.

The Rumor: That when an airplane lands, the gas in its tank is immediately dumped on the ground; that when training planes return to an airport, the tanks are immediately drained on the ground, that before the airplanes are put into hangars for the night, any gasoline remaining in the tanks is dumped on the ground.

The Fact: These are three new forms of an old rumor that has been discussed on their broadcast before. It is definitely and emphatically wrong. The fact quite disproves the rumor. Tanks are not dumped, but drained. There is a regulation in the R.C.A.F. that every plane in service must be refueled immediately after completing a flight, so as to be able to take off again at a moment's notice. This applies to planes in hangars as well as in airfields. Tanks are never emptied except when they are to be removed for repairs which require this to be done. In this event, the gasoline in the tanks is run off into drums and used for motor transport consumption. The dumping of gasoline on the ground would never be permitted in any airfield not only because of the gross wastage but because of the fire hazard.

This ends the rumor clinic for tonight. Don't repeat rumors, report them. Send them to me at The Edmonton Bulletin for investigation and discussion.

Social Security

From Canada's domestic standpoint, the most important event of the week was the meeting in Winnipeg, by the Conservative party in convention, of resolutions pledging that party to a broad program of social security.

This makes it unanimous.

Every political party in the country has now included a social security plan in its platform.

Prime Minister King has publicly declared, more than once, that social security must come. He has made it a Liberal principle.

The Social Credit and New Democracy parties are founded on social security principles. The C.C.F. similarly, is pledged to a social security program.

And now the Conservatives have fallen in line.

That's no one objects, why isn't it done?

This new unanimity gives rise to the hope that the next session of parliament may be asked to implement this positive wave of affirmation with something concrete along the line of health insurance, adequate unemployment insurance and a retirement allowance of decent proportions.

Mr. Weir broadcasts every Saturday night at 8:15 over radio station CFRN (1260 Kc.)

When the farmer had helped the airman to disentangle himself from the mess of cordage and fabric, he remarked:

"You must be very brave to come down in that parachute in a gale like this."

With a snort, the airman pulled the last rope loose from his feet.

"I didn't come down in this parachute," he said coldly; "I went up in this tent."

Australia Debates Conscription

Heat and Recrimination Mark Consideration of Act "Down Under"

By GRANT DEXTER

Until the enactment of Bill 80 last July, the position of Canada and Australia with respect to overseas conscription—indeed generally with respect to conscription—was identical. In both Dominions there was conscription for home defence while the voluntary system was relied upon for overseas service. In both parts a strong agitation for overseas service.

With enactment of Bill 80, however, Canada definitely moved nearer the realization of over-all conscription than Australia. This is a notable fact when it is remembered that Australia is in the forefront of the battle in the Pacific and is just as closely integrated—if not more so— in military matters with the United States as is Canada.

Under these circumstances, the overseas conscription struggle in Australia is of importance. In Canada, the Australian controversy is not concerned with questions of non-English-speaking minorities. Australia has no Quebec.

Home Defence

Since the enactment of Bill 80, the position in Canada is this: Conscription applies to home defence and to certain outposts of Canada (such as Alaska and Newfoundland). Overseas conscription is the function of the cabinet to put into effect at a moment's notice by an order in council approved by the government; no further reference to parliament is legally necessary.

In Australia, conscription under the Defence Act and the National Security Act is restricted to home defence. The first statute dates from 1902; the second from the last year. Men may be required within Australia but may not be ordered overseas except by parliament. The Australian government to apply for legislation to overseas service. The first step would be the enactment by parliament of amendments to these statutes—the equivalent of the enactment of Bill 80 at Ottawa last July.

A few days ago, Premier John Curtin proposed to extend conscription to contiguous areas (which was done by Bill 80) but his cabinet colleagues and members of the cabinet resisted the change and it has been referred to the federal conference of the labor party for discussion.

Lacks Measures

At the present time, therefore, Australia lacks two measures which have been adopted in Canada, the extension of conscription to contiguous territory and the enactment of over-all conscription to be applied at the discretion of the government.

Last May 30, a debate took place in the Australian House of Representatives on conscription. Opposition, by motion of Rt. Hon. Arthur Fadden, the leader, sought to achieve the very measures Australians law that were achieved in Canada in July by Bill 80. He declared that conscription should be included in the area to which conscription applies and to amend the two statutes so as to leave the application of conscription to the unfettered discretion of the government. The prohibitory sections, he said, should be repealed and the government freed of all limitations to send soldiers wherever they were needed. This, he said, would not necessarily mean the application of overseas conscription. The government might not use the power. But it would mean that the government would be free to deal with any emergency that might arise, without having to come to parliament for additional power.

Mr. Fadden's motion was defeated on division (page 847 Australian Hansard 1942) by 31 to 27 votes. The debate was marked by high feeling and bitterness. It will be found in volume 4 of Australia's parliamentary debates, pages 797 to 847.

No Defeatism

From a Canadian viewpoint, the debate is specially interesting. Nobody at Canberra suggested that Australia is not doing her full share in this war. Nobody questioned the valor of Australia's fighting men. Nobody suggested that the government wanted to hold back or to shrink from any sacrifice in aid of victory. There is not a defeatist speech in the record. There were no quitters, no members who saw the issue in a narrow, selfish, nationalist light. The majority was plainly opposed in principle to overseas conscription. To them, the case against overseas conscription in fact was seemed unanswerable. To defend his native soil, every citizen must bear arms. To serve overseas, however, is a different matter.

Mr. Fadden's case for overseas conscription in important respects was much stronger than the case for it in Canada. The Curtin government had fused the home defence militia and the overseas Imperial force. How could such an army be used efficiently when it must be broken up if sent overseas? There must be one army, not two When the time for offensive action came there would be chaos. Moreover, there was bad feeling between the volunteers and the conscripts and army morale was suffering.

Humiliation

The safety and honor of Australia demanded the adoption of the resolution. Consider the humiliation of the present position. United States' citizens had been conscripted and sent to Australia to defend a nation which lacked overseas conscription. How could Australians look Americans in the face under such circumstances? Must Australia lag behind her ally, and in her own immediate defence?

Mr. Fadden affirmed that he had no thought of embarrassing the government. He was trying to help it; to give it the power to act without recourse to the cumbersome machinery of parliament. The government, having got the power, need not use it until the necessity for doing so arose.

This was the broad line of argument in favor of overseas conscription.

In resisting the motion, the government made these points:

Unity

Overseas conscription could be applied only at the price of national unity.

In fighting total war, national unity was more essential than overseas conscription.

This was particularly true because there was no lack of overseas recruits. The voluntary system had not failed and with upwards of 100,000 overseas men available in Australia, the government—after taking advice from the military experts—felt sure that future needs would be met without the loss of time.

By bringing this motion forward, the Opposition was trying to divide Australia and to bring the country into contempt in the United States. They were behaving like fifth columnists, Quislings, etc. . . . They were supplying ammunition to the U.S. isolationists who were against the war.

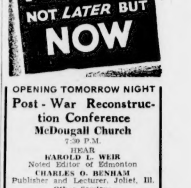

The debate was very bitter. Neither side pulled punches as the following epithets gleaned from Hansard indicate—liars, lies, damnable untruths, appalling falsehoods, offensive liars, cesspit politicians, stab their country in the back, Judases, Quislings, paltry, contemptible, whining, wingeing, squealing and so on.

Worse to Come

HAMILTON SPECTATOR

The new winter uniforms of the Nazis in Russia appear to be no better than the Fuehrer's promises. Moscow reports that many German troops are shivering and suffering from the cold, are pathetic figures wrapped in bits of shawls and surrender gladly when their captors come upon them. Eight U.S. Fliers Killed in Crash

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Dec. 14—(AP)—Eight United States army airmen were killed Saturday night in the crash of a large army plane near here. The resulting explosion split the darkness with flashes that were reportedly visible within a radius of two miles. The impact rocked houses in the vicinity.

Right-Hand Man Of Bracken May Be New Premier

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Names of several prominent Liberal and Conservative members of the Manitoba government were mentioned in political circles here over the week-end as probable successors to Premier John Bracken.

Mr. Bracken, who was elected leader of the Progressive Conservative Party last Friday, said he would recommend to the Hon. R. F. McWilliams, lieutenant-governor, the name of the man to succeed him. Mr. Bracken has headed the Manitoba government for the past 20 years.

Most prominently mentioned was Provincial Treasurer Stuart Garson, who entered the Manitoba house in 1927 as a progressive and is known as Mr. Bracken's right hand man. He is 44 years old.

Hon. Errick F. Willis, provincial Conservative leader and minister of public works in the present coalition government, also was prominently mentioned.

A lawyer-farmer, Mr. Willis takes an active part in the management of his farm and it is believed stands a good chance of taking over the reins from Mr. Bracken, who has said that it was preferable that Manitoba have as its head a farmer, a man with agricultural background.

Others mentioned as possible choices are: Hon. James McLenaghen, attorney-general and Conservative member of the government; Hon. Douglas L. Campbell, minister of agriculture, a Liberal Progressive, and Hon. J. S. McDiarmid, also a Liberal-Progressive and minister of mines.

3 Hospitals Close Due to Doctor Lack

Critical shortage of physicians and surgeons resulting from enlistments in the armed services will be discussed at a conference of deputy ministers of health at Winnipeg this week. It was reported by provincial health department officials in Edmonton Monday that lack of medical personnel had resulted in the closing of three hospitals in Alberta.

Dr. M. R. Bow, deputy minister of health for Alberta, left the city Monday for the Winnipeg meeting at which minimum requirements for public health services under wartime conditions will be discussed.

Hospitals at Rimbey, Bentley and Cold Lake have had to be closed owing to lack of doctors in Alberta. The main reason for the shortage of medical men is enlistments in the armed services.

A health survey conducted recently by the provincial department of health reveals that at the present time there is one doctor for each 2,735 residents in Alberta. The normal condition is one doctor for each 1,000 of population, according to Dr. Bow.

A total of 166 Alberta doctors are on active service. Exclusive of Edmonton and Calgary, there are 212 doctors practicing in the province at the present time.

There are 95 approved hospitals in the province, and it is expected that unless some action is taken to meet the shortage of doctors more hospitals will be forced to close their doors. There is also a shortage of nurses in rural areas, it was stated.

Alberta health authorities point out that the hospital situation is becoming increasingly serious and is critical in view of the possibility of disease epidemics.

Germany Is Not Ready to Crack

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14. — (CP) — Louis P. Lochner of The Associated Press, last of the American war correspondents to leave Germany following outbreak of hostilities between the Axis forces and the United States, said in an interview here today that "we must not kid ourselves" that a breakup in Germany is just around the corner.

Asked if it is true that Germany is ready to crack, Mr. Lochner replied "It can't be. . . . Not until major military defeats begin accumulating outside Germany. . . . Not until Hitler has to send his Gestapo to bolster his forces battling on foreign soil in an effort to stem the tide."

Mr. Lochner, former chief of bureau for The Associated Press in Berlin, said the situation in Germany is vastly different from that of 1918 when Germans would not fire on Germans. Hitler, he said, has weaned his men, first through killing of Jews, then through killing Aryan Germans in concentration camps, until now they will kill anybody without compunction.

URN 3,000 YEARS OLD

HOLMBROOK, Eng. — (CP) — A burial urn believed to be about 3,000 years old has been unearthed in this Cumberland village. The urn was inverted over numerous bones, some human, some animal—the latter possibly the remains of a funeral banquet.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

EDMONTON'S winter sports program really swings into high gear this week. Juvenile hockey starts tonight with Canadians, E.A.C., Maple Leafs and South Side all in action. The midgets go tomorrow and Community League midgets on Thursday. Juniors will also probably get away within the next few days, a special meeting having been called for late this afternoon.

Skating, curling and skiing have been going of course for some time and the City Men's Basketball League joined in the cage parade last week.

President Clare Hollingsworth's promising loop league got off to an impressive start last Tuesday and two more games were played on Thursday. Tomorrow night's scheduled fixtures at Westdale gym will bring out three of the first-game winners, U.S. Engineers playing Y.M.C.A. and Alcans making a bid for victory over the City Police.

ARMY TEAMS HOT

IT IS now becoming fairly clear that all of the best hockey teams may not necessarily be in the National League this year. A glimpse at the personnel of some of the clubs in Quebec Senior League does leave the impression that maybe there is some justification for the query as to which really is the senior circuit. In any event no juniors appear to be making the headlines in the Quebec loop as they are doing in the N.H.L.

The Ottawa Commandos, who got most of the pre-season play and who include in their lineup the great N.Y. Ranger Colville-Shibicky-Colville line along with "Sugar" Jim Henry, Ken Reardon, Joe Carson, Jack McGill and some others of scarcely less lustre have been finding the going pretty stout and at present have a battle on their hands to hang onto third place.

Cornwall Army with Bastien, Drummond, Church, Latoski, Brown, Thibeault, Ritchie, Knott, Conacher, Imlach, Fasano, Riley and Mario are sailing along in front with Montreal R.C.A.F. second.

Montreal Army is fourth with Bessette, Couplile, Egan, Doran, Smith, G. Bruce, Galbraith, Peters, White, A. Bruce, MacDonald, Demers and Filion carrying the load.

And while on the subject of soldier squads, it is not advisable to pass lightly over the performances of the Calgary Currie Barracks and Regina Army sextets—they'll be around when the titles are being talked about in the spring.

"NOW IT CAN BE TOLD"

READING between the lines it was not difficult to glean that conditions were not good for the Dominion football final on Dec. 5, but the full story is now out. Chas. Edwards, Canadian Press staff writer, raises the curtain on the picture in today's Canadian Sport Snapshots, under the caption, "Now it can be told."

But let Charles tell it:

"When Toronto Hurricanes beat Winnipeg Bombers 8-5 in the Canadian football final at Toronto a week ago, censor regulations prohibited more than general reference to conditions of the field. The gridiron was blanketed by snow earlier in the week and, after a thaw, a solid sheet of ice covered the field.

Salt and sand were used to break up the ice and provide footing but the day of the game a bright morning sun left pools of water. Ball-carriers frequently slipped and fell when apparently in the clear for good gains.

Tacklers racing downfield under punts were unable to turn or stop quickly and often missed tackles by a country mile. It was necessary to dry the ball after every play but it became so waterlogged that the good forward passing and punting were remarkable."

Leaders Come Through

High Scores Feature Of Saturday's Soccer

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP Cable)—High scoring marked play Saturday in the British Football Leagues as leaders in all sections gained easy victories. Liverpool, runners-up in the north, trounced Burnley 9-2 while in the south Aldershot won by the same score over Luton. Tom Lawton scored six Aldershot goals.

Blackpool, the Northern Leaguers, beat Oldham 4-1, and Arsenal, atop the south, had an easy time with Millwall, winning 6-1.

Chelsea were beaten 3-0 by Portsmouth and dislodged from second place in the south by Tottinham and Queen's Park, the former beating Charlton 3-2 and Queen's Park winning 3-1 over Clapton.

Frank Daley's freak goal saved the Bears with less than four minutes remaining in the third period. Gordon Bell, Buffalo goalie, stopped a shot but failed to clear, Daley knocked the puck into the nets off Bell's stick.

Max Kaminsky and Max Bennett gave the Bisons a 2-0 lead with goals scarcely two minutes apart in the opening period. THIRD FOR CAPS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Indianapolis Capitals won their third straight American Hockey League victory Saturday night, blasting Washington Lions 8-4 before 4,000 fans.

BARONS LOSE 6-3

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Hershey Bears made it 14 in a row in their undefeated streak in the American Hockey League here Saturday night, defeating Cleveland Barons 6-3 before a crowd of 7,522.

"M" Depot Boxers Lose

Penhold Airmen Take Four of Seven Bouts

Winning four out of the seven bouts on the card, airmen from the Penhold R.A.F. station edged out the "M" Depot boxers at the Arena on Sunday afternoon. Six knockouts were recorded.

Also included on the program were tumbling acts under Cpl. Pritchard, one three minute bout between six airmen blindfold and selections from the band under the direction of Sgt. Taylor.

LAC. Evans of Penhold scored a technical knockout over AC2 Del Poppa, of the Depot, in the 175 pound class. Referee Roy Halliburton stopped the bout early in the second round, with Poppa obviously in great trouble.

AC2 Shaefer came up whit a win over Penhold's LAC. Foster in the 155 pound event. Down for a count of nine in the opening round after being clipped on the chin. Foster was an easy victim for the cruiser as soon as he got up from the canvas.

SECOND ROUND KAYO

AC2 Johnson sent the "M" Depot one up for the afternoon when he put LAC. Fowler out at the start of the second round. Fowler was down in the first. for an eight-count. This was in the 170 pound division.

Cpl. Adkins wound up his portion of the program by finishing off AC2 McLeod of the Depot in the first round. The boys really waded in, but the R.A.F. battler floored McLeod for a count of eight and then completed the job as soon as his opponent got up.

AC2 Berry decisioned Sgt. Price, the visiting airman. Berry's longer reach was used to good advantage. The boys were both 148 pounds.

TAYLOR HAS EDGE

In the semi-final, LAC Taylor of Penhold won in two rounds via the knockout route over AC2 Della Rocha. Making good use of a potent right, Taylor had quite an edge and sent his opponent to the canvas for eight in the first round.

A right to the chin in the next session ended the bout.

In the final bout LAC. Stevenson was too good for AC2 Burke. The "M" Depot boxer weathered the first round safely but ran into difficulties in the second. Stevenson having a decided advantage in the exchanges, although he was eventually awarded the bout on a foul.

Cpl. Geoff Davies was master of ceremonies, while the judges were A. G. Shute, George Mackintosh and Ken Sutherland, U.S.A.A.F. Roy Haliburton was referee, Flt. Lt. Tiny Davis timer, and Sgt. Major Blundell the announcer.

Redmen Ride To Victory With Baugh

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Washington Redskins won professional football's world series Sunday, ending the two-year reign of Chicago Bears with a 14-6 conquest for the most amazing upset of the campaign.

Before a sell-out crowd of 36,000 fans the Redskins rolled to triumph on Sammy Baugh's solid pitching arm and the ball-carrying antics of Anvil Andy Farkas.

This astonishing triumph over a club that hadn't been beaten since mid-season of 1941, that went into yesterday's game so lopsided a betting favorite that bookmakers were offering 20 points against Washington's chances, was easily the standout surprise of a gridiron year.

And the fans who filled this American League baseball park and contributed to a record National League playoff gate of $113,280.40 realized it. At the finish, thousands poured onto the field, and formed a milling mass in the centre of the field for 15 minutes, yelling and dancing.

The Bears had the early lead when towering Lee Artoe galloped 45 yards with a fumble early in the second quarter. The Redmen came right back on a 50-yard pass and an extra point to go out in front before half-time. Then, in the third period, Anvil Andy sparked the Redskins on a touchdown drive during which he carried the ball in nine of 11 plays.

Flin Flon Trims Yorkton Flyers In Double Bill

FLIN FLON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Pinkie Davey's revamped Bombers took undisputed possession of second place in the Saskatchewan senior hockey league standings here over the week-end by taking both ends of a double billing with Yorkton Flyers. Bombers eked out a 4-3 win in a ragged first game and won 8-6 in overtime in the second game.

Two Bomber players had to be taken from the game in their third period of the first game. Jim Skinner was carried off on a stretcher around the six minute mark with a wrenched right knee that will keep him out of the game for at least 10 days. Jack McDonald went off the ice with a fractured wrist a badly cut mouth. He played the second game with his head swathed in bandages to protect five cracked teeth, his only trainer in a real blow to Bombers who leave today for a six game road trip with little rest between games. They open Tuesday night at Saskatoon.

Sid Brown and Jack McDonald of Bombers were the scoring parade each with three goals and three assists. Each got two goals and two assists in the second game with the 14 goals scored coming in the third period. LAC. Butler notched three counters for Yorkton in the second game, two of them in the third period to break a deadlock and give Flyers the lead.

Other scorers on the series for the home club were Bob Weist with two and one, Red Brown with a goal, Bill Orban with one and one, Cunningham with one and one, and Scotty Bowman with one goal.

For the visitors Archie Fraser one goal and three assists, AC2. Hayes one and two, AC2. Fast one and one, Cpl. Bob Luney three and one.

Milford Nets Two

Red Deer Ties Lethbridge In Senior Service Battle

RED DEER, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Corporal Dick Milford's goal just 36 seconds from the end of the third period gave a fighting Red Deer army team a 4-4 tie with Lethbridge R.C.A.F. Bombers in a rough and tumble Alberta Senior Services Hockey League game here Saturday night—the second draw of the season.

Ten minutes' of overtime failed to produce further scoring by either team, weary and bodybruised from three hectic regulation periods featured by rough play, arguments, fights and a total of nine penalties, including a misconduct to Bomber Defencemen LAC. Dick Gray.

Team Captain Milford's third-period marker on a pass from Pte. Bob Proulx, was his second of the night. Lieut. Jack Taylor, son of the famed "Cyclone" Taylor, and Proulx got the other Red Deer goals. Lethbridge scoring was divided between AC2. Andy Chlovechok, AC2. Jimmy Simpson, AC2. Alex Pringle and Garth Boesch.

BOMBERS SCORE FIRST

A Bomber power play wound up in a mix-up in front of Pte. Ed. McAneeley in the Army net and Chlovechok poked in. AC2. Pete Slobodian's pass for the first score.

Taylor scored for Red Deer on a rink-long solo breakaway and then Boesch was penalized for charging as the game got rough. Bombers went a goal up a short time later on Simpson's unassisted marker.

A Red Deer attack ended in a pile-up in front of the Lethbridge net and Slobodian and Pte. Bob Haxby exchanged blows which started a general melee among the players. Both were sent to the penalty box still arguing.

MILFORD KNOTS COUNT

The second period was eight minutes old before Milford got the tieing goal for Red Deer. Then Pete Yanew and Proulx broke away, the latter scoring for the Army. Slobodian and Pringle went through the Red Deer defence and scored from a scramble in front of the net, Slobodian getting credit for the Bomber marker.

LAC. Harlow Tripp was sent off and Gray, in heated argument with the referee, was sent off on a 10-minute misconduct penalty. Red Deer put on the pressure and Milford scored on Proulx's pass at 19:24 to tie it up.

The teams tightened their defences in the overtime session.

Chicago Pulls Toronto Out of First Place Tie

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Chicago Black Hawks knocked Toronto from a first place tie and left Boston setting the pace in the National Hockey League Sunday night by defeating the Maple Leafs 5-2 before a stadium crowd of 13,017.

Toronto even found itself without a clear claim to second place since the defeat, fourth at the hands of Chicago this season, gave the Hawks a share of the runner-up position.

The Hawks, with their defense star, Earl Seibert, back in play after missing two games because of an injury, gave up two goals early in the first period, but dominated play thereafter.

The Toronto goals were scored by Bob Davidson and Babe Pratt.

Davidson's score came when he and Carr caught most of the Hawks out of position. Carr carried the puck in and missed but Davidson flipped back the rebound for a score.

Six minutes later in a melee around the nets, Pratt drove home his goal.

HABITANTS COLLECT FOUR IN THIRD PERIOD

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(CP)—The Montreal Canadiens blew a three-goal lead Sunday night then nonchalantly scored four more in the last eleven minutes to whip New York Rangers 7 to 3.

The victory gave Montreal a three-point edge over the last place New Yorkers in the National Hockey League standings.

A crowd of 14,331 had just warmed up to cheering a Ranger come-back that tied the count at 3-3 and preserved the New York club's record of having scored in 227 consecutive games where Canadiens began to hit the net again. They did it so easily that they made it look as if they could have scored whenever they pleased.

Hector (Toe) Blake set the pace for the Flying Frenchmen, whose speed was a big factor in disorganizing the Ranger defence. He scored three goals and had one assist. Joe Benoit, Maurice Richard, Gord Drillon and Terry Reardon were the other Canadien sharpshooters. New York's goal getters were Joe Bell, who was playing his last game for the Rangers, Hank Goldup and Phil Watson.

Bell received notice that he will be called for Canadian army service in a week and decided to leave for Canada to see what could be done about enlisting in the navy first.

The other Toronto goals were contributed by Lorne Carr, Billy Taylor and Gaye Stewart.

The game, the first major league hockey game in the afternoon in Boston's history, was the first of the four Red Cross benefits that have been scheduled for this season. It drew a slim crowd of 4,869 and gate receipts of $6,286 all of which were turned over to that organization which hopes to realize a total of $60,000 from the four charity games.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Sport Shorts from Britain: Gordon Richards, Britain's 38-year-old riding wonder, bustled into London town and confided that his proudest moment of the racing season just passed came after he won the Oaks at Newmarket on the King's filly, Sun Chariot.

"The King met Sun Chariot and myself in the paddock," said the littleman. "He looked up at me and said 'Well done.' Then he led us into the winners' enclosure."

Gordon's greatest regret is that although he volunteered twice for the services, he was rejected on medical grounds as a consequence of a serious illness 17 years ago. In addition to being crowned Britain's champion jockey for the 15th time, Gordon is a pigeon fancier. His Marlborough home contains a loft housing about 60 of the best-bred birds in the country.

At the outbreak of the war he offered the entire stock, two of which had been given him by the King, to the national pigeon service.

There's a letter on the way to a German prison camp telling Pte. Gordon Rolf, one of the most spectacular turf plungers of pre-war days, that he lost $420 as a result of a freak bet made at the opening of Britain's flat-racing season.

Co-heir to $2,250,000. Roll sent from behind the barbed wire a bill of 10 horses he fancied. His bet was $45 to win each time one of them ran. The horses participated in 48 races but recorded only seven victories.

Most expensive failure was Gold Nib who ran out 10 times. Most profitable'we was on Phase who galloped home to 100-6 and 5-1 victories. Roll's racing wagers were made by postcard after his capture at Dunkerque.

It's rare indeed for a Derby winner to be rated only third among the season's three-year-olds but that's where the handicapper of the Jockey Club, the official racing body, puts Lord Derby's Wailing Street. The Kings Sun Chariot and Big Game are bracketed at the top.

For the second year in succession a filly was placed at the head of the free handicap for two-year-olds. Last season it was Sun Chariot. This season it's Lady Sybil, owned by Martin Benson and daughter of Nearco, a horse that never was beaten. Lady Sybil scampered home first in six of seven starts and placed second in the other. She will probably compete in the classics next year.

Over in Kire, a horse ran two races in one day—over the jumps, Paddy Sandy, at Limerick, finished second at 5-1 in the Mun Ret hurdle. Two hours later he won the country steeplechase at 10-1.

Edward J. Hirshberg, Yale end coach and sports publicity director, has been commissioned by the Marine Corps. He will report at the conclusion of the football season.

National League Releases Fielding Averages for 1942

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The National League announced Saturday its official fielding averages for the 1942 season and as usual the mass of figures was full of surprises, not the least of which was the disclosure that New York Giants had the best team record in the circuit.

In percentages the aging Giants had a slender margin of .9772 to .9770 over Boston Braves. This scarcely made them the foremost defensive combination in the senior circuit, but it did show that a lot of observers underrated Mel Ott's mellow men.

On the basis of field percentage the figures showed the following all-star lineup for the league, excluding pitchers of whom 22 had perfect defensive records:

First base—John Mize, Giants, .995.

Second base—Nicholas (Mickey) Witek, Giants, .978.

Shortstop—Eddie Miller, Braves, .983.

Third base—Stanley Hack, Cubs, .965.

Outfield—Danny Litwhiler, Phils 1.000; Tommy Holmes, Braves, .990; Medwick, Dodgers and Mel Ott, Giants, all with .990.

Catcher—Mickey Owen, Dodgers, .980.

Litwhiler's flawless season was the first in the history of the major leagues, but many baseball men did not consider him any better than in 1941 when he made 15 errors and his field average was .964.

Miller, topping the league's shortstops for the third consecutive year, unquestionably rated the distinction and his percentage of .983 equaled a 15-year-old record set by James Cooney of Chicago and Philadelphia in 1927.

Chief among the other individual exploits reported were those of Len Merullo of the Cubs who, in making four errors in one inning, set a record for shortstops; Billy Jurges of the Giants, in going 18 fielding innings in one game without an error, tied a record; and Ray Lamanno, who succeeded Ernie Lombardi as catcher for Cincinnati Reds, also succeeded him as the league leader in passed balls with 11.

In team fielding the Phils, of course, made the most errors, 194, while the Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers tied for the fewest with 138. Cincinnati completed the most double plays, 158, and the Giants, Braves and Cubs each had one triple play.

U.C.L.A. Earns Right to Meet Georgia in Rose Bowl

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP)—It's Georgia and the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins in the Pasadena Rose Bowl New Year's day.

The Bruins conquered an old jinx Saturday to score their first gridiron victory in history over the University of Southern California before a crowd of 97,500. The final count was 14-7.

Shortly after the game the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Athletic Committee officially voted to instal the Bruins as the west coast representative in the Bowl game. The Bruins finished their Conference schedule with six victories and one defeat.

It remained for Waterfield to catch the Trojan defenders napping and set up the first touchdown. On a fake reverse he sucked the Trojans' right end, Joe Davis, and centre Joe Wolf out of position and ran 15 yards out of bounds on the five. Fullback Ken Snelling scored from the two and his placement made it 7-0.

The Uclans scored touchdown in the third quarter was a deceptive aerial thrust of 41 yards that also caught Southern California's secondaryo ut of position.

The complexion of the game changed as the fourth period opened. The Trojans' elusive tailback, Mickey McCardle, lateralled to end Doug Essick and he dashed 20 yards to Ucla's 10, where Waterfield halted him with a shoestring tackle. On the next play McCardle swept his right end for a touchdown and Dick Jamison added the extra point.

Alberta District News In Brief

Presentation Of Bible Made To Knox Church

RED DEER — Mrs. Nettie Wright, of Calgary, has presented to Knox Presbyterian church, Red Deer, a leather bound Bible in memory of her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sage Bannerman. Mr. and Mrs. Bannerman were pioneer settlers in this district. The inscription in the Bible reads:

"In loving memory of my father and mother, Sage Murray Bannerman and Christina Bannerman, who came to the Red Deer district and built the first home on the banks of the Red Deer River at what was known as the Old Crossing, on the Calgary and Edmonton Trail. My father was one of the early pioneers. He came in 1883, and my mother and the family in 1890. They were the first communicant members of the Presbyterian church, and the first service was held in our home by the late Dr. McQueen, B.A., D.D., LL.D., of Edmonton, later moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Canada."

Funeral services were held here on Thursday for the late Mrs. Arthur Underwood, 38, who died in Calgary recently. Mrs. Underwood, who was Ruth Comer before her marriage, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Comer, of the Edwell district. Surviving her are her husband and two children.

Break-In on Jasper Nets Thieves $116

Approximately $116 in cash was stolen from the Rite Spot hamburger shop, Jasper avenue and 97 street, at 6 a.m. Sunday. Entry was made by shattering the glass out of the rear door.

The break-in was discovered by Constable Ben Wheatfield in the course of his rounds on Jasper avenue.

Constables Fraser and Forslund, in charge of a police prowler car, immediately instituted a search for a man whom they apprehended temporarily about 10 minutes before they were notified of the break-in. They believe this man to be the shopbreaker.

D. Fraser, proprietor of the lunch shop, told police that $116 was stolen from among packages of coffee where it was hidden.

The man gave his name as Cyril Edwards, 35, formerly of Victoria, B.C., but now resident at 10012 96 street.

DESCRIPTIVE DETAILS

Edwards is five feet nine inches tall and weighs about 180 pounds. He is clean-shaven and has a fair complexion.

He speaks with a slight English accent, has a high forehead and is slightly bald.

When seen by police he wore a brown overcoat, black overshoes, blue hat, and a dark suit.

Police reported that his father had been contacted and he informed the police that he had a phone conservation with the wanted man at 10 a.m. Saturday. The father advised the man to surrender to police but he had not done so Monday morning. The search is continuing.

FOOD AUTHORITY STATES:

Malnutrition Is Hidden Enemy of All Out War Effort

Survey Is Being Made Of Dietetic Facilities At Industrial Plants

One of Canada's great enemies as the nation attains every resource for victory over the Axis is the hidden "enemy" of malnutrition, sometimes referred to as the hidden "hunger", Dr. L. B. Pett, Ph.D., M.D., director of Nutrition Services in the department of pensions and national health, declared in an interview here Monday.

Food Scientist

Dr. L .B. Pett, Ph.D., M.D., director of nutrition services for the department of pensions and national health, Ottawa, who is visiting Edmonton on a survey of war plants to ascertain dietetic conditions of war workers. He was formerly a lecturer on biochemistry at the University of Alberta.

Dr. Pett who for five years was a lecturer in the department of bio-chemistry at the University of Alberta, is in Edmonton in the course of a survey tour of war plants. The purpose of the survey is to ascertain the kind of diet that war workers throughout Canada are doing their work on. Dr. Pett's department is armed with order-in-council authority to enforce orders for improvement of dietetic facilities at Canadian war plants.

The survey has been underway since early in 1942.

"We found at the outset that the general tendency in war plants was to pay all the attention to the non-human machines and to neglect the 'oiling' and general attention of the human machine," Dr. Pett said.

BAD RESULTS

"This attitude was having bad results, as you will not get many shells, guns or planes from men and women who are not happy at their work and who are suffering from fatigue, the result of dietetic deficiencies," he explained.

The youthful, well-groomed scientist said he had visited the large aircraft repair plant here and was highly pleased with facilities there for feeding employees on the premises.

"There is a very fine cafeteria at the Aircraft Repair plant and it is well-run by the plant itself.

"They are doing a very good job at the Edmonton plant. We made a few suggestions, because no place is 100 per cent perfect."

FOUR OBJECTIVES

The department of nutrition services has four general objectives at the present time, Dr. Pett said. The first, and most vital job at the moment, is to see that war workers are provided with an adequate nutritional diet. Secondly there is the Canadian nutritional program, which is designed to provide a scientifically sound diet for the

Alberta Board Trade in Session

Establishment of war industries in western Canada, the recent restriction of bus travel and the route of the Alaska Highway are among the subjects that will be discussed at the meeting of the Alberta Board of Trade and Agriculture which opens at the Macdonald hotel Monday under the chairmanship of J. B. Holden, Vegreville.

The board, which represents 22 Alberta board of trade, will also hear delegations from the Alberta Millers' Association protesting against the present restriction of gristing. Other matters to come before the meeting will be the progressive accumulation of farm lands by sects which are exempt from military service, and the present coal shortage in the province.

Mayor John W. Fry will welcome the members at a luncheon meeting at which S. C. Heckbert, Vermilion, president of the Alberta command of the Canadian Legion, will speak on post-war rehabilitation.

Alaska Highway Is Subject of Talk

"The Alaska Highway and Edmonton's New Game Paradise" will be the subject of an address by Gerald O'Connor, K.C., at the last meeting for the season of the Northern Alberta Fish and Game Protective League.

The meeting will take place in Memorial hall, Tuesday at 8 p.m. Two movies, "Game Bird" and "Nature Films" will be shown, and a report on game birds, 1942, will be given by F.C. Unland.

Election of officers for 1943 will be held, and general business matters heard. Dr. T. Forrester Macdonald, president, will preside.

Man in Attempt To Commit Suicide

Second attempted suicide victim in Edmonton at the week-end, Earl Harris was admitted to the Royal Alexandra hospital at 10.50 p.m. Sunday, suffering from loss of blood, and injuries received by slashing his wrists with a razor blade, city police reported Monday.

Harris left his home at 215 Alexandra. Block shortly after 10 p.m. Sunday and when at Kingsway and 112 street, slashed his wrists.

He then walked to the hospital and asked for admission and treatment.

Harris is an employee of Aircraft Repair Ltd.

Solvent Causes Fire in Autos: Warning Issued

A cleaners' solvent that is being used as substitute for recognized brands of non-explosive anti-freeze has been the cause of a number of automobile fires in the southern part of the province. According to Calgary papers, Fire Chief Alex Carr of that city, states that the Calgary fire department has already been called to extinguish fires that were caused in this way in five cars.

C. H. Chapman, president of the Edmonton committee of the Western Canada Insurance Underwriters' Association, warns the public against such substitutions.

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

That war itself does not of necessity furnish all the tragedies of great magnitude was evidenced in the two terrible fires that occurred in places of amusement in Boston and St. John's, Newfoundland, recently.

Both fires claimed an appallingly high toll of victims, and despite the fact that Saturday's fire at St. John's will come under the more direct investigation of the department of national defence, it seems certain the two fires will result in much greater official attention to the kind of buildings used for public gatherings, and the kind of emergency fire-fighting equipment available in case of an outbreak.

In many cities of the Dominion there are night clubs operating with interior finish of the most inflammable nature imaginable.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

An Edmonton visitor started something last week when he suggested that Canada should process many of its horses for food. What do you think of the idea of eating horse meat?

THE ANSWERS

STANLEY PATTERSON, high school student: I've often heard the saying: "I'm hungry enough to eat a horse" but honestly I haven't got that hungry myself-so far. I am not in favor of eating horse meat unless it's a case of doing so to avoid starvation itself and I don't see why that should ever be a problem in Canada, war or no war.

GEORGE HOOD, salesman: If people are starving I see no objection to eating horse meat. Perhaps after all it's largely a case of prejudice we have had instilled in us since childhood. In France they regard horse meat as a delicacy and the French are considered a people of great cultural attainments. I would not advocate processing of horses for food unless there is a need for, though. I don't think it should ever be done just to provide a market. That sounds too much like the "brilliant" stunt of ploughing up cotton or dumping oranges or coffee into the ocean.

C. NIVEN, schoolteacher: I don't think there is any need of killing horses for meat in Canada. I heartily agree with the man who said the horse, as man's best friend, is deserving of much better treatment at the hands of Anglo Saxon peoples. Besides I don't think horse would be tasty.

University Air Training, Expanding Cadet Movement New R.C.A.F. Developments

Increase in the number and efficiency of the squadrons now training in the Air Cadets of Canada and establishment of university air training corps in all leading Canadian universities, are among recent important developments in Royal Canadian Air Force expansion plans, Wing Commander H. W. Aslin, deputy director of air force manning for Canada, said in an interview here over the week-end.

A former Edmontonian, having been manager of the Macdonald hotel here for several years, and a veteran of the first Great War, Wing Commander Aslin is making a coast to coast inspection tour of recruiting and manning establishments in all parts of Canada. He left for Vancouver Sunday after conferences with officers at No. 3 recruiting and manning stations here.

The visiting wing commander left Edmonton in 1935 to take the post of manager of the Bessborough hotel in Saskatoon, the large Canadian National hotel in the Saskatchewan hub city, that was opened during that year. He has been on active service with the R.C.A.F since the outbreak of the present war. He served in the Canadian army and in the R.A.F. in the first Great War.

Three of six victims of a farmhouse fire at Telfordville Saturday were admitted to the Royal Alexandra hospital. One is in a serious condition. The fire gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kruger Saturday when a gasoline-fired iron exploded. Most severely burned is Mrs. Kruger, while Marlina, age 7, and Harvey, 10, are also in hospital though not seriously burned.

Inspection of all dance halls, and service hostelries in Edmonton will be made at once to determine whether or not the fire safety regulations are being strictly carried out, and also to determine if exits conform to the city's building regulations, it was announced Monday by Mayor John W. Fry. Initial steps to bring about the survey were taken at a conference between City Architect John Marland, Fire Marshall Jack Booth and the city commissioners. The inspection of these buildings will be undertaken within the next few days and arises out of the two recent fires in which loss of life was extremely heavy.

Sgt.-Observer J. M. Campbell, R.C.A.F., has arrived safely overseas, according to information received Monday by his mother, Mrs. J. A. Campbell, of 10057 94 street. Born in this city the young airman attended Alex Taylor and Victoria High schools. For some time he was a carrier boy for The Bulletin. At the time of his enlistment he was employed as bookkeeper with Nichols Brothers 95 street. He was graduated as a sergeant-observer at Rivers, Man., and later took operational training at Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Debert, N.S.

Frank Bennett was named financial secretary, George Robinson, treasurer; Lou Green, conductor; and L. Pretty, sentinel. R. Peck will be trustee for 18 months. C. J. Sherwood, W. Frizzell, E. Ferris and G. Robinson, form the shop committee. The lodge is made up of mechanical maintence employees of the C.P. Air Lines in Edmonton, west to the coast, and north to the Yukon.

Civic Workers Ask Extension Living Bonus

Request from the executive of the Edmonton Civic Employees Federation that payment of the present cost-of-living bonus be continued in 1943 until such time as new agreements have been negotiated between the city and civic unions will be considered by the city council at its meeting on Monday night.

A number of routine matters are scheduled for disposal at this meeting, including a request from former chief of police A. G. Shute for a permanent pass on the street railway system. Request for this pass had been refused by the city commissioners, and Mr. Shute is now appealing that decision to the city council.

The council will be asked also to consider the application of R. Yonyeama, Japanese student now working on a district farm, for permission to attend high school here. In his application he states that he will live with a Japanese family in the city and will not be a burden on the city in any way.

Appointment of C. E. Brown telephone department, as representative of the civic employees on the Air Raid Precautions committee, is recommended by the city commissioners.

PRIZE DONATION

The council will be asked to approve the donation of $230 toward the prize list of the spring livestock show sponsored by the Edmonton Exhibition Association. This donation will be utilized in the baby beef classes in the Boys' and Girls' Calf Feeding competitions.

Cost to the street railway department of the snowstorm that tied up traffic for several days was $3,550, of which $6,000 was loss of revenue, and $3,550 for overtime paid to street railway employees working on snow clearing, and repair of equipment damaged in the storm.

Plan Inquest Traffic Death Next Thursday

Inquest into the death of Arthur Stanley Magee, 83, who was killed in a traffic accident Saturday, will be held at the police court room at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Detective-Coroner William McDonald announced Monday.

The jury was empanelled Monday following identification of the body at Foster and McGarvey's funeral chapel.

Mr. Magee was killed at 11:15 a.m. Saturday by a loaded truck that went out of control after the driver saw him slip on the icy street and fall to the street.

The accident occurred on 97 street near the intersection of 106 avenue.

According to eye-witnesses, Mr. Magee was carrying a parcel as he was attempting to cross the street, he slipped on a deep icy rut and fell. He used a cane.

An approaching truck driven by William Schlitt, Stony Plain veered suddenly as if the driver applied the brakes, witnesses stated, but as it skidded sideways towards the man, the hind wheels struck him.

He was dragged for some distance before the truck came to a stop facing in the opposite direction.

When Mr. Schlitt was informed that Mr. Magee was dead, he fainted.

The following list of jurors was empanelled Monday for Thursday's inquest: Sidney Smith, Harry Milner, R. F. James, L. H. White, H. Knowles and A. E. Asher.

Further Report School Strike Is Being Awaited

With Premier William Aberhart, Alberta minister of education, absent from the city Monday, no further announcement on the Vegreville school division teachers' strike was forthcoming from officials of the provincial department of education Monday.

Premier Aberhart is expected to return to the city Wednesday from Calgary where he is attending the opening of the Post-War Reconstruction Conference.

Deputy Minister G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education, said the department would take action to open the Vegreville division schools Jan. 4 next. In the absence of Premier Aberhart, he declined to explain the procedure that would be taken to re-open schools.

BOARD REJECTS

A plan to end the month-old salary strike was approved by teachers and the executive of the Alberta Teachers' Association, but at a meeting last Friday the Vegreville division school board rejected the plan, thus stalemating the negotiations.

Man Burned to Death in Jail

A prisoner was burned to death in his cell at the Dawson Creek jail early Sunday, when fire of unknown origin gutted the jail house before help could arrive.

The dead man is Albert Langdon, former employee of the Miller Construction Company on a northern project, who was imprisoned temporarily while awaiting trial.

Cause of the fire is unknown as there was no fire in the building and the prisoner did not have any matches on him.

The jail is used by the B.C. provincial police. Langdon is the seventh victim to die as the result of fires in the Peace River district this winter.

Last week, a fire at Rose Prairie took four lives, and a fire at Taylor Flats took two more a day earlier.

A few weeks ago the Dawson Creek post office was gutted, and last week a house in the town burned down.

10 Minor Mishaps During Week-End

Ten minor accidents, most of them caused by the extremely slippery condition of the street, were reported to city traffic police at the week-end. In no instance was there injury to occupants of vehicles involved.

One city car owner had his stolen car located as the result of a slight crash on 101 street near Kingsway avenue. Before D. H. C. Wright, 9024 83 avenue, knew that his car was stolen from in front of the Canadian Legion Hut on Kingsway the police informed him that it had been struck by a taxi on 101 street.

The stolen car was abandoned along the curb straddling a deep rut. A taxi driven by F. A. Lennox, 10283 101 street, struck it as Lennox was unable to get the wheels out of the icy rut.

The police responded and the car was towed to be the property of Mr. Wright.

To Visit Here

D. B. Wallace, assistant to the vice-president of C.P. Air Lines, who is scheduled to arrive in Edmonton from the east Monday. He will confer with C.P. Air Lines officials here.

Send Happy Letters To Boy in Service

Tell Him Little Stories About Those He Knows Around Home; Don't Write Gobs Of Gloom

A young girls asks me if I will tell her how to write a letter to a boy friend who is in the army. She isn't in love with him or he with her, so there is no sentimental interest involved, as the movies say. Otherwise, the matter would be easy. She would just let herself go and slush over on paper with endearments and sign it with XXX (kisses) and she'd feel as if she had written a poem. The recipient would gloat over it because it would bolster his belief that Clark Gable has nothing on him as a lady killer. Also it would make entertaining reading when passed along among the other boys at camp.

But deprived of this source of inspiration the girl finds that writing letters to a boy towards whom she entertains only kindly feelings is rather hard going. After she has told Joe that she had received his last letter and is glad to hear that he is well, she doesn't know how to go on from there. Yet she knows how heartening a letter from home always is and how dejected and neglected one always feels when the postal clerk says, "Nothing for you." Hence she wants to do her bit by cheering up the lads at the front but when she sits down to put pen on paper, she discovers that suddenly she has gone dumb.

There used to be a handy little volume called "The Complete Letter Writer" that contained form letters in which one had only to insert "Dear Mary" or "My Beloved Evaline" or "Tom" or "Dick" or "Harry" according to the name and sex of the one to whom you were going to send the missive and, presto, the job was done. There was a letter couched in the most eloquent language, expressing the most beautiful sentiments, varied to suit any occasion, a letter that anyone would be proud to write and pleased to get and no cudgelling the brain or sucking the pen handle involved. It must have met a longfelt want with many a youth and maiden but, alas, this valuable help in a time of trouble is out of print now and boys and girls are left to flounder around in the epistolary quagmire as best they can.

WRITTEN THOUGHTS

To these I would gladly hold out a helping hand but about the best advice I can give them is, don't try to write anything in a letter that they would not be willing to see published in their home paper, and, secondly, not to write letters that are gobs of gloom. So daughter, if you cannot be cheerful in a letter, keep away from the ink pot. Remember that anything that is written seems ten times as fatal and final as when it is spoken. When our friends tell us about their troubles we pat them on the back and say, "There, there, forget it. Let's go and have a nice dinner," and over a good steak or lobster newburg we both put the matter out of mind.

But when the writers say their hearts are breaking and their world is full of woe, we brood over it and it poisons our days and keeps us awake at night. We think they mean it, and are not just talking and posing and bidding for our sympathy. It is literally true that what we hear in one ear goes out of the other, as the old adage says, but what we read is seared in our memories.

Hence, girls, when you write to the boy friend at the front, just remember he has plenty of griefs of his own. Don't pass on any bad news to him.

Don't write him that his mother is looking terribly and that she has another tear every time she speaks about him.

Don't feel it your sacred duty to tell him that his best girl is going around with a handsome stranger, or that Tom Smith has got his place at the bank.

It isn't necessary to tell him about all of the pay parties the hunters are going to.

HOME-TOWN GOSSIP

Write him all the jolly gossip you can pick up, for he is a lot more interested in knowing what is going on at home than he is in what is being done in the Chancelleries of Europe. Tell him about your war work and how many sweaters you aer knitting and how you are getting along with your first aid class, so that he will feel that you are trying to serve your country your way, just as he is doing in his. Only impress on him that his is the big way and yours is the little way. And don't forget to keep telling him in every letter how the crowd misses him, how they talk about him and how proud they are of him. Pat him on the back and blow the bugle for him.

Write him little stories about the people he knows. About your kid nephew painting up his dog's mouth with his mother's lipstick because he thought ladies with red mouths looked so cheerful. About the two little cuties who walked out on the Red Cross when they found that they would have to wear caps at their work that would hide their new permanents; about fussy Mrs. Jones who sent a list of all of her son's favorite dishes to the commissary department and so, on and on, about people whom he is interested in.

Pad out your letters by sending your boy friends clippings out of papers and magazines. The boys at the front don't see many of these so cut out the clever little cartoons and the articles about things that you know they are interested in and put them in the envelope and you may be sure that yours will be one of the letters they always look forward to and enjoy.

What To Do

What part does the mother of the bridegroom play in his wedding?

Answer: On the day of the wedding the mother of the bridegroom enters the church on the arm of the head usher, just before the bride's mother enters. She sits on the right side of the church, in the first pew. After the ceremony the family of the groom follow the family of the bride from the church after the wedding party leave.

At a home wedding the groom's mother takes a place near the improvised altar in the space fenced off by ribbons for the members of the family.

At the reception the bride and groom may receive alone, or they may receive with the wedding party, the bride's family and the groom's family. That is a matter of choice.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

How can I get my baby to eat?

That question indicates the child eats something but not those foods which the mother considers a desirable for him to eat. A hungry child would eat without urging.

Mrs. D. W. says her baby never has been a hearty eater. He now is 10 months old and during the last four of five months he has eaten very little.

"I have tried leaving off his bottle, but no matter what I do he won't eat. I have tried several kinds of baby food, but he won't have these, or anything else. Just crackers and fruit. He takes his milk all right. How can I get him to eat?"

Chiefly by looking at his present schedule of eating, at the type of bottle milk, at the foods he consumes between meals to see in what way you can rearrange and change all of them so as to inspire a good appetite. No one can force a child to eat.

I'd see that he didn't have one thing to eat except at stated intervals, these to be established at 7:00 and 11:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. With no more than three meals a day, there is every chance for an appetite for food to develop.

Make sure that the bottle milk is not too rich and no longer contains much sugar. Try skimmed milk for a short time, until the appetite revives, then go back to a milk with cream but not too much cream. Milks rich in cream destroy the appetite.

Give not more than three cups of milk a day to drink by bottle (and begin training for cup feeding) and use the other cupful in the extra foods.

See that the baby has one to two ounces of fruit juice daily (preferably orange juice) and an adequate dose of cod liver oil or one of the concentrated pills. The appetite might be affected if the baby had any degree of rickets, however small and undetectable.

To inspire a better appetite for the solid foods try offering them before the bottle. One teaspoon is enough for a beginning, and increase until baby can take a tablespoon or two or three. With the morning bottle serve cereal, give orange juice and the oil between this and the noon feeding. At noon offer egg yolk and vegetables and at night cereal or mashed baby and some other cooked, sieved fruit.

Crackers are a starchy food, but they do not take the place of whole grain cereals, and to offer them between meals would so satisfy the child's appetite as to make him disdainful of the next regular meal. You want to insure that he will be hungry three times a day so that whatever you offer will be alluring to him.

Our leaflet, "Three Meal Schedule," describes the hours and contents of each of these meals. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Tomorrow: Massage may rest "tired" baby.

Christmas Menus Call For These Dishes

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Fruit cake with a sprig of holly on it certainly belongs in the Christmas picture despite war and turmoil. And an old-fashioned pudding, simple to make and even easier to eat, should be on hand, too. This delicious old-time dessert recipe and Christmas menu come from "What's New in Foods and Nutrition."

Berkshire fruit cake is a simpler form of the traditional Christmas dessert.

GRANDMOTHER'S CRACKER CRUMB PUDDING

(Serves 6)

Two cups milk, scalded, 4 soda crackers, ½ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup cream or undiluted evaporated milk, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1 tablespoon butter, melted, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Pour scalded milk over crackers. Cover and stand until cool. Combine sugar, salt and cinnamon. Add to milk mixture; add remaining ingredients in order given. Blend thoroughly; turn into buttered baking dish. Place baking dish in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven (300 deg. F.) one and one-quarter hours. Cool and serve with ice cream sauce on top, or with thick cream.

BERKSHIRE CHRISTMAS FRUIT CAKE

(Makes 5½ lbs.)

Three and one-half cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon mace, 1 cup butter or other shortening, 1 cup sugar, 3 well beaten, 4½ cups raisins, 4½ cups currants, 1 cup thinly cut citron, ¼ cup candied orange peel, ½ cup candied cherries, ½ cup candied pineapple, ¾ cup fruit juice, ¾ cup light molasses.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add fruit, grape juice and molasses, and mix well. Add flour gradually, beating after each addition until smooth. Turn into tube pan, which has been greased, lined with heavy paper, greased again. Bake in slow oven (250 deg. F.) 4½ hours.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Tomato juice, wholewheat bread, crumb griddle cakes, honey, country sausage, coffee (or substitute), milk.

Luncheon: Toasted cheese sandwiches on enriched bread, cole slaw, chocolate cornstarch pudding, tea, milk.

McCoy Health Service

Our word bunion comes from the Greek word meaning "Turnip."

A bunion refers to an inflamed swollen, and painful condition of the bursa of the big toe, called the metatarso-phalangeal joint.

The bursa is a small sac with lubricating fluid inside of it. It is so placed between the hard bone and the tendon as to act as a cushion enabling the tendon moving the toe to slip easily over the bone without pressure. There are a large number of such bursae in the body and ordinarily when one of them becomes inflamed, we call the condition bursitis. However, when this particular bursa at the big toe joint becomes inflamed, it is popularly called a bunion.

The bursa may become injured through wearing a tightly fitted shoe, through dropping something on the foot, or by a blow. Such injury is commonly followed by inflammation. The tight shoe does the damage because the rubbing of the foot against the shoe induces sufficient pressure to cause a bunion to result.

Once a bunion develops, there is often a distortion of the joint, with the joint itself becoming more prominent. The overlying skin generally becomes thicker than normal and the patient also complains of pain. The degree of pain experienced depends to some extent upon the amount of inflammation present, and may vary from an acute, sharp pain to a dull, disagreeable ache. The aching of the bunion may be affected by weather changes and it is quite common for the victim to be able to predict rain simply because his bunion responds with fresh twinges before a rainstorm.

It is possible for a bunion to become an exceedingly chronic trouble and there are many people who undergo discomfort from this cause over a period, not of months, but of years. In some instances, the prolonged use fo the foot as occurs during a long walk, will generally increase the pain.

In the milder type of case, the patient will be able to do away with distress by being sure to wear a shoe which fits properly. As long as the shoe exerts no pressure over the affected joint, the foot will remain comfortable and no further enlargement will occur. In the severe type of case, the patient shows a wisdom by consulting a foot specialist. In a few instances it is necessary to treat the condition by operation but there are several types of operation useful for the purpose, giving relief and producing no stiffness of the joint.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of p per only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service in care of this paper.

Getting Around

highly varnished. Edmonton, fortunately has no place of amusement of such construction at the present time.

As a matter of fact this city has had its share of bad fires, but has had remarkably few fires that have claimed many lives. This is both a tribute to the efficiency of the fire department and to the commonsense of the citizens. At the same time it would be well for the fire marshal and his assistants to make a closer check than ever on all places where the public gather for amusement and make certain that the regulations regarding fire are observed.

At a time when so many people are engaged in duties that just naturally involve danger to life and limb, great loss of life and injury from preventable fires seems more than ever tragically stupid.

Was talking recently with a man who witnessed the early triumphant victories of the Japs in the Far East. His only fear is that the strategy of the war now being followed by the Allies will give Japan time to build up her industrial plant and her aircraft industry in particular, to the extent where she will be extremely difficult to defeat, even with Germany beaten.

Said our friend:

"The Allied commanders in the Far East say that Japan could be beaten now with 4,000 bombing planes and an equal number of fighters, attacking Japan proper.

Guard Is Killed As Prison Train Wrecked in U.S.

NEVADA, Mo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A Missouri Pacific train carrying prisoners of war, was wrecked near here Saturday, killing one American soldier, injuring eight others, two seriously. Four prisoners were injured slightly, and none escaped.

A report to Seventh Command headquarters said five cars at the end of the train were thrown down an embankment by a broken rail. Two were completely overturned, and one, serving as a kitchen car, was damaged extensively. It was in the kitchen car that most of the casualties among the American military personnel occurred.

That's just two months' production for the U.S. now. The commanders out there can't see why this comparatively small amount of equipment is not available now.

Japan has 20 times the potential strength of Germany or Europe. And whether we like it or not Japan will not have the difficulty with her subject peoples that Germany is having. We could beat Japan and beat her badly with just a fraction of the strength we now feel is necessary to throw against Hitler," he said.

Our friend added he was not criticizing the grand strategy of beating Germany first, but said that military men on the spot in the far east were convinced they have the real chance of the war to defeat Japan decisively now. Later it will be plenty difficult, they predict.

major championships of bridge. Not long ago I asked him if he would give me six of the most interesting rubber bridge hands played at the club this year—and here is the first one.

West opened the queen of clubs and continued with a club, which East won. Each cashed another club, and West had to make a discard. No use discarding a small heart. East would shift to diamonds, the suit bid by West. If West wanted a diamond led, he could discard the queen, but he wants a club continued. So the defender deliberately threw away the ace of diamonds, establishing the king in dummy and leaving it to his partner to reason as follows. He certainly does not want a diamond led. If he wanted a heart played, he would discard a high heart or high diamond. He must want me to continue with a club.

That was exactly it. If a club is continued, there is no way 4o prevent West from making the queen of spades and thus setting the contract.

Simplicity Is Key-Word To Fashions

OTTAWA, Dec. 14.—Gone are the designer's 'wedding' rhapsodies in heavenly blue and cloud pink.

In an amendment to the "fashion freeze" order of Nov. 17, the Prices Board ruled today that future brides still may be ethereal and enchanting, but only in white ice cream.

The amendment also cuts down on the frills on bridesmaids' dresses. Trimming a la tyrol is out, with the elimination of suspender straps, bodice bibs and patch pockets. From now on, the skirt or coat in a dress must be finished with a waist band.

If even goes into the question of pyjamas, ordering "one-pieceers" for sizes up to six. And the summer will see no more sassy, skirted sunsuits. The ruling eliminates matching and contrasting skirts on children's play suits.

Children's ski togs have been given further consideration; the elimination of belts, tunnel loops and side straps will apply to slacks only, not ski suits, jackets or snowsuits.

Wool 'nesss for the outdoor gal is the amendment that stretches the length of a windbreaker by a good four inches. Starting today, windbreakers may be manufactured with an overall length from neck to hem of 26½ inches; women's size 16, and 23½ inches, girls' size 10, standard grading to prevail for other sizes.

Because of the shoulder strain felt by the sheer short-sleeved blouse, the administrator has permitted the use of a double yoke, but the ruling still eliminates double pockets. French cuffs on double cuffs on short sleeved blouses, as well as the use of a separate or attached hood, shawl scarf, kerchief or matching accessory with any blouse.

And an additional restriction has been brought into force against luxury garments. Now lounging pyjamas as well as hostess gowns and negligees are things of the past.

Olive Martin Pledges Vows Knox Manse

At a ceremony in accord with wartime simplicity, Saturday evening at Garneau United Church manse, Olive Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Martin of Ardrossan, exchanged marriage vows with Michael Joseph Schurek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schurek of Thorsby. The Rev. D. C. Ramsey officiated.

The bride wore a becoming frock of pale green bunny wool, dressmaker style, with pleated skirt and patch pocket. She wore an ecru lace collar, matching green hat, and dark brown accessories and yellow roses and violets made up her corsage.

Miss Hazel Johnson was the bride's only attendant. Her ensemble was of gold wool jersey, a frock with a two-piece effect in the front. Brown accessories, talisman roses and bronze baby 'mums en corsage, made her ensemble complete.

Brother of the bridegroom, Albert Schurek, was best man.

The couple will make their home in Edmonton.

United Services' Club Hears Month's Reports; Plans for Yule Season

The United Services Y.M.C.A. club, established as a recreational centre for men and women of the armed services, heard reports on voluntary work for the month, at a meeting Thursday. Mrs. R. W. Jones, president, presided.

Members of the Canadianettes club are deserving of praise, it was mentioned at the meeting, because of the many hours they have donated to checking coats at the "Y".

Dances are held each Wednesday and Saturday nights from 8 to 11:30 "M" Depot, and No. 4 I.T.S. orchestras, provided music for two of these dances.

Flags of the United Nations will be used to decorate the lounge, and Junior hostess groups, from women's organizations throughout the city, will put up decorations for the Yuletide season.

Mrs. Sunday's concert, or an evening of music, games or refreshments, is held.

The canteen was recently enlarged to cope with its growing popularity, and members of the canteen committee are wearing new uniforms. Arrangements are complete to welcome members of the armed forces on Christmas day, from 11 a.m. and on.

The Canadian desk of the War Service's Council for Northern Alberta, by courtesy of the Y.M.C.A., supplied food for 1,000 meals and dances for 1,500 men and women of the three armed forces and the merchant marine, during the month.

Help Sought For Jewish Children

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—The chief rabbi of the British Empire, Dr. Joseph H. Hertz, preaching in the Spanish and Portuguese synagogue in London, appealed yesterday to the United Nations to save Jewish children, adults, feast from mass poisoning and burial alive by Hitler and his hell hounds."

Speaking on Jewish day of mourning and prayer for Jews in Poland, the chief rabbi said:

"The ghastly tragedy which a portion of the British press and some government circles display towards this most appalling massacre in history is amazing."

Street crowds in London observed a two-minute silence at 11 a.m. as a tribute to the oppressed Jews of Europe.

Yanks Continue Blows at New Jap Airfield

By SANDOR S. KLEIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(BUP)—U.S. forces in the Solomons, successful thus far this month in blasting three Japanese sea attempts to reinforce their isolated troops on Guadalcanal, are continuing efforts to knock out a new Japanese airbase only 150 miles from the island, the navy disclosed today.

On Sunday (Island time), American planes smashed at enemy installations and runways at Munda, on New Georgia Island, the navy said, continuing attacks which started late last month.

Ground activity on Guadalcanal was limited to routine patrol activity, the navy said. A single enemy plane dropped three bombs near Henderson airfield.

The latest enemy attempt to land reinforcements and supplies on Guadalcanal, announced by the U.S. navy yesterday, cost the Japanese at least one destroyer sunk, a second probably sunk and six others damaged.

French Release British Internees In West Africa

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(AP) All British internees in French West Africa have been released, it was learned authoritatively today.

Word of this action by French authorities has been received by the state department here and by the United States embassy in London, and coincides with broadcasts by Radio Dakar to the effect that serious differences between the Darlan administration in Africa and the British government have been clarified.

"On all our frontiers," the Dakar radio said, "the situation is completely clarified and no dispute separates us any longer from the British. Our task is defined. There is henceforth only one duty for all —to work, to prepare, and when the time comes, to fight. There is henceforth but one aim—the common victory."

HAS SIGNIFICANCE

Particular significance was attached to the Dakar announcement, since it was at Dakar that Vichy France and Britain came close to open war. That was in the summer of 1940, when a British-supported Free French squadron attempted to take the strategic base and withdrew after shelling the town and damaging French warships.

Britain's Toll Of Spies Now Stands at 10

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—In the quiet darkness of London's blackout a turnkey tacked up on the gate to Wandsworth prison two notices. They were death sentences, the penultimate chapters in the lives of two men who spied against an empire at war.

And a few hours later, in the bright sunshine of a July morning, Wandsworth prison gates bore four new notices. They were execution announcements and death certificates, the last words in twin tales of espionage.

Executed for treachery were Jose Estella Key, a British subject, and Alphonse Louis Eugene Timmerman, a Belgian. They brought up to 10 the number of spies executed since the Second Great War began. One was shot by a firing squad, the others hanged.

SMALL AUDIENCE

A soldier in a car and a solitary coalman were the only members of the public present when the two notices of execution were removed and the four others substituted. But in a Britain which has learned since the big bombing raids to treat death coldly, announcement of the double execution was big news. London's late evening papers gave it greater prominence than the big war news from Russia and Libya. Then Key and Timmerman were forgotten.

Key was born in Gibraltar, the scene of his spy activities. His function was to observe and record movements of British forces for the enemy. When arrested he was in possession of information ready for transmission to Germany. He was brought to Britain for trial.

CAME AS REFUGEE

Timmerman, born at Osleud, was unmarried, a ship's steward who before the war had made frequent visits to British ports. In the autumn of 1941 he came to England posing as a refugee from Nazi-occupied territory in an attempt to gain information but he was detected before he had done any harm.

He admitted, eventually, that he had been sent to Britain after training by the German Secret Service to find out secrets of naval and military importance. He brought secret written material including crystals for making invisible ink and special stationery.

The public wasn't told the hour at which these men died. Their appeal having been dismissed, the notice of execution merely said: "The sentence of the law passed upon Alphonse Louis Eugene Timmerman and Jose Estella Key, found guilty of treachery, will be carried into execution at — — a.m. tomorrow."

Roof-Maintenance Products Ready

The season is fast approaching when roofs will be subject to heavy snow and ice. It is important that the drainage function smoothly. If gutters, leaders and cornices are of metal, they should be painted occasionally to prevent tarnish and deterioration. If excessive rust scales are present remove them by wire-brushing before painting, although there is a special metal paint which can be used.

Copper and bronze gutters and downspouts should have a coating of spar varnish to protect them from oxidation.

Galvanized iron leaders and downspouts need a special paint, too, as ordinary paint does not adhere properly.

Check the places on the roof where flashing is present. If new flashing is needed, investigate the fabric type, which consists of asphalt-saturated cotton. There are no metal flashings available without priorities.

If new gutters are your problem, there are a number of excellent wooden ones on the market.

WARTIME SCOTCH

LONDON.—(CP)—For a few months, at least, Scotch whiskey made in Britain, is going to have a special wartime taste. Many distilleries are using more peat than usual in drying barley and the "peaty" flavor will not be altogether eliminated during blending.

Boston Offers Aid For Fire Victims

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—An offer to rush supplies of blood plasma and an expert in the treatment of burns was cabled yesterday by Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston to St. John's, Nfld., where fire in an army hostel took the lives of 110 persons and sent 102 others to hospital Saturday night.

The mayor advised the mayor of St. John's and also the superintendent of that city's largest hospital that he is prepared to send blood plasma to aid the victims and to loan the services of Dr. Charles C. Lund, an expert on burns attached to Boston city hospital who treated many victims of Boston's Coconaut Grove fire two weeks ago when 494 persons died. A plane was kept in readiness to take off for St. John's should Mayor Tobin's offer be accepted.

Big Allied Planes Roar Over Channel

FOLKESTONE, England, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Big formations of Allied warplanes, flying high above the clouds, headed over the Straits of Dover toward the continent this afternoon.

One group roared out in the direction of Calais and Cap Gris Nez on the French coast.

The throb of aircraft engines continued steadily for nearly an hour and then was heard intermittently. Weather over the straits was good.

Men Permitted Choose Course Minister Says

Like the prodigal son, men are allowed to choose their own course. They have many alternatives, which they try and discard, until finally they shall be reduced to inner barrenness with nothing to return to but their only hope — God, or else go on into outer darkness.

This was the message, "The End of the Age," that the Rev. E. S. Ottley, rector of Christ church brought to his congregation, Sunday morning.

"Throughout history people have been faced with alternatives," he said. "One by one, the others have been tried and failed, but the tragedy is that when men do see the light, they often prefer to go on in darkness."

The progress of understanding the way of life must continue if the race is to go, he asserted. The spirit of anti-Christ in the hearts of men is trying every scheme rather than submit to the Gospel, which works toward the elimination of alternatives.

FINAL VICTORY

No one knows when this process of eliminating alternatives will end, but the world is moving slowly to the final struggle. "We should not assume it will be a struggle between material armies, but we are seeing more clearly that the world must choose between chaos and Christ. There can never be anything but final victory for God; Christ alone must be ruler."

To understand what Jesus and the writers of the New Teastament had in mind about the second coming of Christ, it is necessary to understand His first coming, which was to bring a new element of loyalty and devotion by which men are transformed.

"I believe He shall come again to judge the quick and the dead," Mr. Ottley concluded.

"It is our duty to Christianize society and raise it to true Christian standards," the Rev. Daniel Young, minister of the First Baptist church, said in his Sunday morning sermon.

INDICATES STAND

Mr. Young indicated the stand of the ministry of Edmonton in regard to the proposed opening of theatres on Sunday for the entertainment of servicemen and women when he said that commercial interests were being fostered under the guise of patriotism.

The minister told his congregation that everyone should do his utmost to help make life easier for the armed forces, but added he thought the opening of theatres on Sunday would harm the standards of society more than it would help the troops.

The subject of the sermon was "Christian Citizens in a Pagan World" and Mr. Young's opinion was that too many people regard the church as "an institution which marries people and buries them and adds a note of dignity to matters of state."

They don't dislike the church if it minds its own business," he said, reminding his audience that the task of those with a spiritual background is to Christianize the pagan world.

King Celebrates 47th Birthday

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(CP)—Six months from the official celebration, the King observed his 47th birthday today.

He planned to spend the day quietly with members of his family. A private luncheon was arranged with the Duchess of Kent and two of her children as guests of the royal family.

The King observes his birthday officially in June because the season is more favorable for traditional ceremonies.

our monthly quotas," Wing Commander Aslin said.

The officer paid a high tribute to the growing part played by members of the women's division of the R.C.A.F.

"The commanding officers of the air force have been unstinting in their praise of the work done by the enlisted women. It has far surpassed all of our expectations," Wing Commander Aslin said.

There are more than 30 air force trades performed by airwomen, among them being, instrument repairing, transport driving, parachute packers and meteorologists' assistants. Thousands and thousands of men, formerly doing ground crew work, are now released by women for air crew duties.

INCREASE NUMBERS

"The response to the call for air crew enlistments in Edmonton has been good and the same can be said for cities all across Canada," the officer said.

"Of course we must not only maintain, but must increase the volume of men for the air crews, all the time."

Lowering of the academic requirements for enlistment as air crew has made thousands of young men eligible that would not have been eligible under the earlier conditions of enlistment, the wing commander said.

Academic training is now being given to the young men in the service itself.

Edmonton recently acquired separate facilities for the reception, interviewing and enlisting of women at the No. 3 centre.

Of the air cadets, Wing Commander Aslin said:

"We now have 238 squadrons of the Air Cadets of Canada with a strength of over 20,000. Our target is 350 squadrons with a strength of 35,000. We have uniforms and instructional equipment and publications for a total of 35,000. These squadrons are organized right from the Pacific coast to Prince Edward Island and we have some in the far north, at Peace River and Arvida, Quebec. The air force provides all of the equipment and we are also going to provide air cadets with facilities for their summer camps, at R.C.A.F. stations, right across the country. We are going to run more instructors' courses and officers' courses when we have provided additional R.C.A.F. personnel to assist in administration of training."

The University of Alberta Air Training Corps, that came into being with the start of the term in September, is under the command of Squadron Leader W. G. Hardy, well known professor of classics at the university, and prominent hockey official and sports enthusiast.

"There are squadrons now training in all universities and five other squadrons are in the process of formation," the wing commander said.

The purpose is to give a student interested in the air force a pre-training concurrent with his regular university court.

The University Air Training Corps occupies exactly the same status in respect to the R.C.A.F. as the Canadian Officers Training Corps occupies in respect to the Canadian Army, it was pointed out.

The training parallels that given at an initial training school of the R.C.A.F. and there is, in addition, advanced instruction given in navigation, wireless and other technical subjects. A detached flight of the U.A.T.C. is under instruction at the Mount Royal College, Calgary, under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Gardener, principal of the college.

Total strength of the corps here to date is slightly above 200.

A student enrolling in the U.A.T.C. is actually enlisted in the R.C.A.F. but is not considered on active service until he completes his studies at the university.

Those taking the course are uniformed and equipped by the R.C.A.F. Special shoulder patches denote that the students are members of the U.A.T.C.

VISIT R.C.A.F. CENTRES

Students will also attend courses at R.C.A.F. stations during the summer months to familiarize them with actual conditions. They will not, however, receive actual flying training.

"A fully qualified U.A.T.C. student will have the equivalent to 12 full weeks of training at the end of his course," the wing commander said.

Members of the university staffs have been appointed officers of the training corps but they will be assisted in administration and training by personnel from the R.C.A.F.

Air cadets who decide to join the R.C.A.F. when they are eligible will receive preferential treatment.

A qualified air cadet will save many weeks at a manning depot and is certain to qualify in many of the subjects at I.T.S. far in advance of the ordinary students.

GROWING RAPIDLY

The air cadet movement is growing rapidly and there are air cadet squadrons in all cities of the dominion and some in the far north, the wing commander said.

The officer conferred here with Cadet Squadron Leader Colin MacKenzie, commanding officer of the Edmonton squadrons of the Air Cadets of Canada.

"Bracken on Spot" Declares Gardiner

WINNIPEG, Dec. 14—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Saturday in a written statement regarding Premier John Braken's acceptance of the Progressive Conservative party leadership that "Toronto Tories headed by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen succeeded at last in putting Mr. Bracken on the spot."

Mr. Gardiner, Liberal premier of Saskatchewan from 1926 to 1929, and from July, 1934, until he entered the Dominion government in 1935, accused Mr. Bracken, who has been premier of Manitoba for 20 years, of trading on the progressive label for the past 20 years.

The minister said that when Mr Bracken was in danger of defeat early in his political experience he traded the label for Liberal support and held office and later traded it for Social Credit and Independent support. At the last provincial election he traded it for Conservative and C.C.F. support, Mr. Gardner added, and now, when no further trade could be made in the provincial field, traded it to the federal Conservative party for personal advancement.

". . . I think the convention chose the man least likely among the group available to lead them to greater heights." Mr. Gardiner said.

Malnutrition Hidden Enemy Of War Effort

Canadian people as a whole. Then there is the vitally important work of research. Lastly the nutrition services act in an advisory capacity to existing health services, federal, provincial and civic.

Dr. Pett conferred with provincial health department authorities at the legislative buildings Monday afternoon.

CO-OPERATION

"Generally speaking, we have enjoyed splendid co-operation from the operators of war plants, who are in the great majority of cases most anxious to assist us in our task of providing adequate nutrition for war workers. There have been two or three notable exceptions in plants in eastern Canada. These employers apparently care little about the health and wellbeing of employees, so we are taking steps to enforce certain recommendations we made," Dr. Pett stated.

All arrangements as to carrying out of suggestions concerning feeding of war workers are carried out through the department of munitions and supply. Dr. Pett said a staff of dietitians is being employed by his department to inspect and supervise the work generally.

The general procedure during the last year of survey work has been to visit plants and obtain complete data as to the eating habits of the workers. They find out how many men and women take lunches to work, whether or not there is a plant restaurant or cafeteria on the premises, or other facilities for obtaining hot drinks and other things that would supplement the diet. A lunch room on the premises is valuable. Next, the investigators ascertain the kind and quality of the food served and the prices charged.

"We want to know whether or not meals are sold as a real service to the employees or as a money-making proposition," Dr. Pett explained. In many cases an outside company is interested solely in making money, he said.

"In the case of women war workers, our survey disclosed that most women were not eating good nutritional lunches.

"The conditions were frankly, not good," Dr. Pett said. Women, he said, did not seem to realize that working steadily at exacting work required different nutritional standards that what they had previously been accustomed to. Conditions, of course, vary, as to the size and location of the plant.

SHOULD HAVE ONE

"If a large plant employing a great number of persons, has no cafeteria on the premises, then we advise the operators they should have one. We also help them out in the matter of securing needed materials on which there are priorities," he said.

"War workers should be reasonably peppy at night when they have finished their work and this is most important if the morale of the nation is to remain high."

After certain recomendations are made the department waits a period to see if the recommendations are carried out and then there is a second inspection visit.

Following action by the British and United States governments early in the war the government of Canada has now approved a grade of white flour in which much of the Vitamin B has been retained.

"This flour is called the Canada approved Vitamin B flour, and while I consider it a good step in the right direction, I do not think it solves the nutritional problem altogether," Dr. Pett said. He explained that a standard was set up for flour in Canada following studies last year. This flour is now on the market.

"Knowing that vitamin B is the great nerve or morale vitamin, the British government early in the war, ruled that all ordinary white flour must be treated with thiamin or Vitamin B elements. The U.S. also adopted the plan. In Canada we decided such action was a waste. Why not mill flour that retained the Vitamin B instead of putting it back in again after the milling?" Dr. Pett said.

LOST COMPLETELY

"So a standard was set up for flour that is still white and yet retains the shorts and bran to some extent that is lost completely in the milling of ordinary white flour. There were some difficulties in milling and baking at first but these have been overcome and Canadians may now obtain the new Canada approved vitamin B flour almost anywhere, just by asking for it."

He said that the increase in the incidence of tuberculosis in Canada recently results largely from bad housing and malnutrition.

"We should never confuse malnutrition with starvation," he concluded.

Bus Problems Discussed at Parley Monday

Representations from Alberta bus operators protesting the federal order restricting bus passenger travel to not more than 50 miles a day were heard by the Alberta Highway Traffic Board Monday.

Effect of the order is to fix 50 miles as the total mileage a bus passenger may travel on one continuous journey.

Exemptions to the order have been granted some bus companies, and it was reported that other operators had applied for exemptions at Monday's hearing of the board.

CURTAILMENT

The board also heard applications from some operators for curtailment of their existing services owing to financial loss resulting from the federal order.

Attending the meeting were G. B. Fay and R. L. Borden, Calgary, executives of Greyhound Lines Ltd., Manley J. Edwards, M.P., for Calgary West; and J. H. Rymes, Regina, regional transit controller.

G. H. N. Monkman, deputy minister of public works, is chairman of the board, the other two members being N. W. Macpherson, prpovincial highway commissioner, and bers being N. W. Macpherson, procity's increasing importance as an W. T. Aiken, secretary of the board.

AUDACIOUS NIGHT FORAYS

British Sub "Shoot Up" Trains In Bold Raid on Italian Coast

By NOLAND NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In one of the war's boldest exploits, a submarine commanded by a 28-year-old Englishman has staged a series of night raids along the Italian coast, stopping a railway by shelling a train about to enter a tunnel, damaging another train and leaving an oil factory in blazing ruins.

The commander, who likes subs "because you don't have to wait to be an old man to get your own ship," told the full story yesterday of these incidents.

Another 28-year-old submarine leader who scored torpedo hits in four Axis troop ships told of seeing the sea between Tunisia and Sicily covered with an enormous oil patch miles across and littered with the corpses of Germans whose transports had been destroyed by British cruisers Dec. 1.

SOME GET THROUGH

But even the best efforts of the Royal Navy are unable entirely to prevent the Axis from getting reinforcements to North Africa. Day after day, he said, almost every time his submarine surfaced he saw "great numbers of transport planes flying to Tunisia."

The attacks on the Italian coast were carefully planned, the first submarine commander related.

"First we patrolled the coast, examining the railroad through the periscope," he said. "Then on a very dark night I decided to go in and see what we could do. We surfaced at a village and watched the bright headlight of a train and opened fire when the train was about to enter a tunnel.

"We scored several hits and saw a flash which appeared to be overhead electric power wires coming down.

VISIBILITY BAD

"We waited again the next day. Visibility was bad but we were able to see trains waiting on each side of the tunnel, and the lines certainly were blocked.

"Then we went out to sea and sighted an Italian schooner. It wasn't worth while using a torpedo, and they didn't see us. So we surfaced and opened fire. The crew quickly took to lifeboats.

"The next day we went into another town where we had seen 15 olive oil tanks and a factory. I must say the results were beyond our expectations. Our first shot only knocked over a privy, but the second brought down a 250-foot chimney, and the third hit the oil tank. After that we scored a number of hits and the place was enveloped in smoke.

"A searchlight began flashing into the air. Apparently the Italians thought it was an air attack. Finally it picked us up and the shore batteries opened fire, so we submerged."

SHELL SECOND TRAIN

The next night the sub slipped in close to shore and shelled another train which was hit several times. Then it started home.

Air Priorities Office Set Up In Edmonton

The first regional air travel priorities office to be established outside of Ottawa is to be located in Edmonton, and air priorities officer for this district will be W. T. Scriviner, who has been assistant to the inspector of the airways department in Ottawa.

Mr. Scriviner, who will carry out his duties in the department of transport offices in the Williamson building, announces that the same policies will be followed in Edmonton as are enforced by the dominion offices.

Priorities for air travel will only be granted for travel directly connected with the war effort or in case of emergencies. Applications for priorities for compassionate reasons will not be granted.

The purpose of establishing the Edmonton headquarters is that this city's increasing importance as an air centre has been recognized by the federal government, and because of the amount of air activity here it was felt necessary to establish the regional office, Mr. Scriviner said.

The Edge of Darkness

BY WILLIAM WOODS

CHAPTER XXIII

AT 3 o'clock that morning the snow stopped falling, but it kept drifting in little showers off the roofs and other high places in every gust of wind. The tide was almost full; it eddied dark about the dock pilings and rushed with a loud seething under the planks.

"One hour more," Karl thought, pacing, gun on his shoulder, along the landward side of the pier.

A hundred paces north, and 100 south. "If I walk slowly, it is only 10 more trips out and back again along the post." He shivered with the cold and heard, out to his left, the dark sea rising and battering against the rocks.

At last the sky grew clear. And one more turn. The stars read 4 o'clock. And then he heard the quick tramping of boots from the street side.

"Who goes there?" He sprang forward, rifle in hand.

"Corporal of the guard."

"Come on up."

"All well?"

"All well." They raised their arms at each other.

A man left the detail and marched over to the wharf.

"Good night." Karl slung his rifle around and strapped it to his back. Strange how their voices echoed in the cold air.

"Good night."

He walked slowly, filled with a strange and sudden disquiet he could not understand. The street was windy and still; the dark houses on either side looked very cold. The others were already far ahead. How many nights he had turned straggler from the detail so he could meet Karen at once of their countless rendezvous.

He thought again of the last note Karen had sent him—a note of farewell, telling him she had gone to Stockholm with her mother.

Just ahead lay the square, bread and shadowed in the light of the stars. A little snow eddy swept past the fountain. The church tower lifted skyward, glistening all silver.

At first he did not hear the muffled voice that called out from the dary alleyway. "Soldier," it cried. "Soldier."

He wheeled around, reaching for his gun. "Who are you? What do you want?" His own voice sounded hollow to him.

It was the doctor, standing in the shadows, his face pale and frightened as death. "Your name is Fischer?" he asked.

And Karl felt an uncanny shivering take hold of him. But he snapped, "Yes. What are you doing out? What . . ."

As he stepped into the shadow an arm shot forth behind him with bewildering speed and locked about his throat.

He cried out and felt a heavy leather sleeve bite into his mouth. He struggled furiously, but the arm was like steel. And at that moment, in a frenzy of fear and torment, he saw the doctor's gaping, disfigured face as he lunged forward, the glittering blade of a bayonet held high.

It struck.

He turned; his head felt heavy as a stone, and then for the first time he felt the pain as he coughed. With a sudden plunge the earth opened up and he started falling sickeningly, and tried to rouse himself, reached out. . . .

But he did not wake.

Only Osterholm and his two helpers, Oluf and Elnar, were left in the farmyard. They worked hurriedly and tensely, emptying the boxes, stumbling heavily through the drifts, for the most part silently—the plan had been developed in detail hours ago—but now and then one of them would say a quiet word and glance out through the icy darkness to the road.

A wagon stood in the court. Osterholm laid half the shining rifles in the straw that covered the space behind the seat, and then he and the two boys pitched forkful after forkful of dry fodder on top of them. Afterward they went to the barn for planks to make a false bottom over the guns.

Above that they piled firewood out of the storehouse, stacked to the top. The sentries could pull down half of it and never see a thing. But if one lowered the tailboard and reached in, there lay the 150 rifles and the long boxes of cartridges. The rest of the guns, secure in the cellar, could wait until the revolt had started. But it would be too dangerous to have all in town.

Despite the dark, the clock read morning. The cocks were crowing in their coops. Osterholm led out the horses. They shook their hides under the blankets and reared when they felt the cold iron of the bit. And then all five of them, horses and boys and man jolted out onto the road with a low, careful snap of the whip, and the steam blowing out of them into the frosty air.

Osterholm pulled a watch out from under his heavy coat. "Seven o'clock," he said, "and I want to be back by dawn. That gives us two and a half hours."

Half a mile down the road they came to the blockhouse that had used to be the schoolmaster's cottage. The walls that had once been white, with tiny vines creeping up from the corners, were now reinforced with concrete. The windows had been narrowed to slits, each with its snout of a machine gun poking out. The whole cottage had been transformed into a low gray dome almost hidden in the snow.

The usual sentry stepped out into the road as they drew up. "Where to?"

"The village. Load of firewood," Osterholm called down.

The soldier slung his rifle up and clambered onto the wheels to look. "A man can't even make a living these days," the farmer grumbled, trying to appear casual. "You fellow poking your noses into things. He wiped a sleeve over his mouth and turned to watch the trooper lifting the topmost logs. "What do you think I carry? Dynamite?"

"Mind your tongue," the German snapped. But then he leaped down and called, "All right. Get along. Next time don't start out so early."

Oluf cracked the whip and they started forward again, leaving the sentry standing by the side of the road.

At the water's edge lay the first house, a fisherman's small, one-room cottage, belonging to a certain Bjarne Jullum. Oluf got down off the wagon and pounded at the door. A woman in a neat gray house dress opened up. "It's I, Fru Jullum," Oluf cried. "We're selling . . . firewood."

Osterholm came down. Through the half open door he could see a man in a threadbase overcoat sitting up in a double bed next to the stove. On a small table without a cloth lay the cold remnants of their breakfast. The room was as chill as out of doors. "Wood with a difference, Bjarne," the farmer called in a low voice. "It comes from England."

The man sat up, pulling his collar close. "England?" he asked weakly. His eyes seemed to have taken fire, but no more words would come. He motioned to his wife, and she ran out in her slippers over the snow. Oluf lowered the backboard while she gazed fearfully around. A moment late they came back into the house, carrying a rifle and a small box of ammunition. The fisherman stretched out his cupped hands and Oluf poured thte bullets into them. "Fifty rounds," Osterholm said. "The whole coast is being armed."

"Yes, yes," the man whispered excitedly. "Don't think I'm not ready just because you find me in bed. I get up today. Gunnar told me my post is on the bridge. I know exactly what to do. When does the attack come?"

Osterholm looked out the door. "We'll let you know. But not one move until you get orders."

They trudged back out to the wagon. Osterholm clambered up and seized the reins, and they started forward again. Next house and next, and always the same quick rap at the door, the low exchange of words, eyes taking fire, and then under an armful of wood a rifle carried in and 50 rounds poured out of the ammunition boxes. It was as if ahead of them lay darkness, and behind, the spreading dawn. At every house they whispered short instructions. Hidet he rifles. Take no action without orders. Maintain discipline and wait.

There has long been a notion that a person should not eat much candy and sweet stuff because this would cause his teeth to decay. Modern scientific studies indicate that bad teeth are more likely to be the result of bad diet or heredity. Plenty of calcium in the diet is more important than doing without a piece of candy, dentists tell us. Good sources of calcium are in milk and fresh vegetables. Besides minerals, they give us the vitamins we need.

Petain Meets Hitler Demand For New Army

LONDON, Dec. 14. — (CP) — Marshal Henri Petain has agreed to Hitler's proposal to raise a new French army, the Vichy and Berlin radios reported yesterday, as the Fighting French in London reported the fuehrer had ordered 400,000 French workers conscripted for war work in Germany.

The Fighting French here said that in return for the workers Hitler promised to free an unspecified number of French prisoners of war.

The Vichy radio said Petain, in a letter to Hitler, declared "my first duty is to reconstitute an army capable of insuring the safety of France and her colonial empire," and that Petain could "only bow to the decision" that forced the German occupation of all France.

REPLY TO HITLER

Petain's letter replied to one Hitler wrote him Nov. 27 when the Germans seized Toulon and the French scuttled part of their fleet. At that time Hitler said "I sincerely hope it will be possible to give back to France an army whose officers at least obey the chief of state."

Mr. Bracken said the name of the party now was Progressive Conservative. He said there is no hyphen between Progressive and Conservative.

Other members of the caucus said no decision had been reached with respect to leadership in the House of Commons.
